LOUISIANA AFFAIRS.

THE CONFERENCE OF DEMOCRATS AND REPUBLICANS.

THE QUESTIONS DISCUSSED—NO AGREEMENT ARRIVED AT—THE HITCH ON THE MAKE-UP OF THE RETURNING BOARD—A COMMITTEE FROM WASHINGTON.

NEW-ORLEANS, Sept. 21.—The Committee of Conference which has been in session since Thursday last, trying to arrive at some amicable conclusion in relation to the various questions which for some time past have been agitating the people of this State, adjourned this evening, being unable to agree upon a settlement. During the conference the doings of the committee have been guarded with the utmost care, but it now transpires that, as was stated in THE TIMES of yesterday, the dissension was confined chiefly to the question of registration of voters and the disposition of official patronage. The conference was asked of Gov. Kellogg by representatives of the Democratic Party, and was granted by him and his party in the hope of establishing a more friendly relation between the members of all political factions. The Republicans would, however, enter into no discussion of the affairs of the State until the representative Democrats should have agreed to sign a resolution, which sets forth, in substance, that Gov. Kellogg having been recognized and his authority having been re-established by the President of the United States, he shall be permitted to peaceably exercise the functions of his office, as shall also all the minor and assistant officers recognized by him throughout the State. This was agreed to after some little discussion, and the conference was continued.

The first proposition made by the Southern element of the Conference Committee was that both Kellogg and McEnery should resign, that the Board of State Canvassers be called together and directed to declare that the returns showed that Penn, who ran for Lieutenant Governor on the fusion or mixed Democratic and Liberal ticket, had been elected, and that he, upon assuming control of the Administration, should order at once a new election for all State offices. This proposition the Republicans rejected, upon the simple ground that it was unconstitutional. The next proposition made by the Democrats was that a new election should be held under the inspection and control of officers of the United States Army. This and other propositions of a similar nature were also rejected, on the ground that they were unconstitutional.

The next question taken up was that of registration of voters. As already stated, this was the subject that occupied most of the time spent in the conference, and was the cause of the unsatisfactory breaking up of the meeting. In this State the law provides for the appointment by the Governor of one register in each parish or county, and in each of the city wards. Each Register is entitled to two clerks. In making his appointments this year, Gov. Kellogg proposed to the Democrats, as he states, that they should have the appointment of one clerk in each district, and called upon the State Central Committee to name the men who would be agreeable to them. Not content with this, as the Kellogg party claim, the Democrats demanded that half the registers be appointed from their supporters. This Kellogg would not agree to, and the Central Committee refused to send in a list of names of appointments to clerkships. Knowing how much depended upon a settlement of this question, United States Marshal Packard, who was the Republican leader in the conference, states that he was willing to make all reasonable concessions to the opposition. With this object in view, he assured them on the part of his party that none but honest, good men should be allowed to hold the office of Register. The Democrats were not content with this assurance, and still demanded half the appointments. After much heated discussion, during which Gov. Kellogg stated that instead of dictating terms to the party in power, the leaders of the Democracy should be in jail for treason, it was proposed, as a compromise, that an advisory committee of five should be appointed, to be composed of two Republicans, two Democrats, and one non-partisan, to be selected by the conference. The fifth man was finally agreed upon in the person of Dr. Banzano, for twenty-five years Superintendent of the United States Mint in this city. It was proposed that the committee so constituted should carry on and supervise the registration throughout the State on behalf of both parties; that they should have full power to make changes in the manner of conducting registration, and should suggest changes in the registering officers. The Governor, on his part promised that he would act upon the advice of this committee so long as he could do so in accordance with the laws of the State. It was further settled that besides the Governor, the committee should have power to remove an officer connected with registration, who failed to perform his duties honestly, and that they should be allowed to revise lists of names already registered. This proposition was in a measure agreed upon. This was the condition of affairs up to this morning, when the subject of the State canvass was taken up.

The Election law of Louisiana provides that a Returning Board, or board of State Canvassers, to consist of five persons, shall be elected each year by the State Senate. That body at its last session elected two colored and three white men to these positions. The native white element of the State not being satisfied with the personnel of the board, the Kellogg party proposed to create two vacancies, which should be filled by nominees of the Democracy. This, Marshal Packard states, would not be agreed to by the latter. They demanded that three vacancies be created, two to be filled by Democrats and the third by a gentleman agreeable to both factions. This demand was most emphatically refused, and after a protracted debate, lasting until evening, a final adjournment was had.

During a subsequent conversation with Gov. Kellogg, Marshal Packard, and other Republicans, they stated that under no circumstances would they recede from the stand they have taken, and should their opponents also remain firm, it was not likely that another meeting of conference would be called.

Hon. R. B. Cowen, Assistant Secretary of the Interior, and Admiral Rogers, of the navy, arrived here from Washington this morning. They came as a committee representing the National Government, and during the afternoon were in private consultation with Kellogg and other State and Federal officials. It is understood that Mr. Cowen expressed the opinion that the Kellogg party had acted most commendably during the late disturbances, and assured the Governor of the further support of President Grant. The subject of instituting legal proceedings for conspiracy and treason against the leaders of the riots was discussed, but no conclusion arrived at.

NEW-ORLEANS, Sept. 21.—In an interview with D. B. Penn, who led the conference on the part of the Southern element, he stated that the unsatisfactory nature of the conference would probably result in further complications, and it was not improbable that there would be blood shed in the parishes. Other Democratic leaders express the same belief, and state that, in their opinion, the conference was broken up at the instance of Mr. Cowen. To-night the Democratic Central Committee and the White League held meetings at their club-rooms. The report of the failure of the Conference Committee was made, and it was resolved to hold further meetings to-morrow evening.

The news from the parishes is reassuring. There have been no serious disturbances and no immediate trouble is anticipated. Seven additional companies of United States troops arrived here to-day. One company of the Third Infantry goes to Monroe to-morrow, rioting being apprehended in that neighborhood.

A HITCH IN THE CONFERENCE COMMITTEE.

THE QUESTION OF FILLING VACANCIES IN THE RETURNING BOARD.

NEW-ORLEANS, La., Sept. 21.—The Conference Committees, that have been holding daily sessions since Thursday last, had their final interview this afternoon. The object of the conference was to arrange for a joint supervision and control of the machinery of the November election. Everything, apparently, progressed satisfactorily until the question of the composition of the "returning board" was reached. This board, which is the key to the whole election scheme, consists of five members, elected by the Senate. The law provides that vacancies shall be filled by the remaining members of the board. The McEneryites proposed, that three vacancies should be created, two of the vacancies to be filled by them, and the other one to be filled by the joint action of the two parties, who should select some gentleman of irreproachable character, without regard to his party connections. This proposition was positively declined by the Republican Committee, and the conference finally adjourned without any results.

THE STATE-HOUSE AND ARSENAL SURRENDERED FOR WANT OF AMMUNITION TO DEFEND THEM.

NEW-ORLEANS, La., Sept. 21.—Gen. James Longstreet, Commander in Chief of Kellogg's army, says the State-house and arsenal were surrendered for want of ammunition to defend them, and places the responsibility on Attorney General Field, who enjoined the Militia appropriation of $20,000, made by the last Legislature. Gen. Judge Dibble, in a letter to the Picayune, says he fired two shots from a window in the Custom-house at those who deliberately fired at him while standing there looking on, but taking no part in the fight last Monday.

SURRENDER OF THE M'ENERY PARISH OFFICIALS.

FRANKLIN, La., Sept. 24.—The McEnery parish officials, who took possession of their offices last Wednesday, surrendered them quietly to the Kellogg officials to-day.

THE LAWFUL POLICE ON DUTY.

GEN. EMORY THINKS THE SURRENDER MADE IN GOOD FAITH.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—The following telegram has been received at the War Department from Gen. Emory:

To the Adjutant General of the United States Army, Washington, D. C.:

Yesterday the State authorities replaced the temporary Police force by the regular Police force of the city. It was feared that this change might cause some disturbance, and troops were posted at various points in the city, but the night passed very quietly. I think this may be taken as an evidence that the surrender was complete and in good faith, for by a peculiarity of the laws of Louisiana the Police force of this city is organized under the State law, and under direct control of the Governor.

W. H. EMORY,
Colonel and Brevet Major General Commanding.

SOUTHERN REPUBLICANS IN WASHINGTON.

PROVIDENTIAL ABSENCE FROM THE SCENE OF DANGER OF PROMINENT POLITICIANS.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—There have been several arrivals within a day or two from New-Orleans, and to-day Congressman Morey is added to the list. The number of prominent Republicans who were providentially saved from peril of life and limb by reason of absence from the State during the recent disturbances seems to be greater than was at first known, and the sneer of Gov. Kellogg at their absence is quite as pointed as the flings they have made at him for deserting the State-house, and shows that there was no monopoly of courage.

A CLERGYMAN CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLEMENT.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 21.—Rev. Wesley Prettyman, of the Northern Methodist Episcopal Church, and Postmaster at Marietta, Ga., was arrested and brought here to-day for embezzlement and other penal violations of the Post Office laws. Bail was fixed at $2,000 by Judge Erskine.

BISHOP CUMMINS AT BINGHAMTON.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Sept. 21.—Bishop Cummins, of the Reformed Episcopal Church, preached in the First Presbyterian Church last evening. The congregation was very large. To better enable the many to hear the Bishop, no services were held in the North and West Presbyterian Churches, nor in the Congregational and Baptist Churches.

NAVAL INTELLIGENCE.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 21.—Commodore Howell to-day turned over the command of the naval station here to Rear Admiral Bryson. Commodore Howell proceeds to Washington to assume the charge of the Bureau of Yards and Docks.

A MYSTERIOUS CATTLE DISEASE.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Sept. 21.—A car-load of twenty-one cattle from Buffalo were attacked by a mysterious disorder at Washingtonville, Orange County, on Saturday. Eight have suddenly died, and others will die. The disease is conjectured to be an affection of the lungs, caused by the recent dry weather and [illegible] in the cars.

THE FALL CAMPAIGN.

REPUBLICAN DELEGATES ASSEMBLING IN UTICA.

ALL THE HOTEL ACCOMMODATION TAKEN—THE MEN CHOSEN AS DELEGATES AND OTHERS WHO WILL BE PRESENT.

UTICA, N. Y., Sept. 21.—Although very few of the delegates to the convention of Wednesday have yet arrived, a large number are expected on the late night and early morning trains. That the attendance will be large is proven by the fact that all the rooms in the hotels of the city have been engaged over and over again, and hundreds of applications for accommodations have been refused. These hundreds, however, are coming to take whatever chances they may be able to secure. Among the delegates will be many of the most prominent and trusted men of the party. Those from New-York and Kings have been published in THE TIMES, and their names are well known to the public. In addition to these are Henry R. Pierson and Charles P. Easton, of Albany; Senator Woodin, Ex-Congressman Pomeroy, and Col. Morgan, of Cayuga; Senator Decker and Charles J. Langdon, of Chemung; R. Platt Carpenter, of Dutchess; Warner Miller, of Herkimer; Senator P. Kellogg and Assemblymen Philpot and Carpenter, of Madison; Judge Bacon, of Oneida; Senator Madden, of Orange; George B. Sloan, of Oswego; Ex-Senator Elwood, of Otsego; R. W. Stroud, Frank Hiscock, and James J. Belden, of Onondaga; Hamilton Fish, Jr., of Putnam; L. Bradford Prince, of Queens; George S. Batcheller, of Saratoga; Wm. L. Bostwick and Anson W. Knettles, of Tompkins; Senator Robertson and Speaker Husted, of Westchester. In addition a large number of the most prominent Republicans in the City and State have engaged rooms at the hotels. Among them are ex-Gov. Morgan, George M. Van Nort, Hugh Gardner, Isaac Dayton, Charles S. Spencer, Thomas Murphy, Chester A. Arthur, and George Opdyke. The head-quarters of the State Central Committee will be at Baggs' Hotel. A large number of applications for rooms have been received, among others from A. B. Cornell and J. N. Knapp, of New-York; Gen. Batcheller, of Saratoga; Lieut. Gov. Robinson, of Binghamton; Canal Commissioners Stroud and Barkley; H. G. Eastman, Poughkeepsie; W. L. Proctor, Mayor of Ogdensburg; ex-Alderman John N. Parker, Albany; J. W. Cowing, Elmira; Richard Crowley, United States District Attorney of Lockport; Police Commissioner Jourdan, of Brooklyn, and the Kings County Delegation; State Prison Inspectors Kirkpatrick and Platt; the delegations of Orleans, Wyoming, and Genesee Counties, and many others. The following have made application for rooms at the Butterfield House: John M. Francis, Troy Times; John F. Smith and Charles E. Smith, Albany; W. S. Kisselberg, Troy; C. R. Dayton, Gen. Sharp, and J. R. Dawn, of New-York; Senator D. P. Wood, of Syracuse; John Sperry, Fred. Shields, and the Erie County delegation; Mr. Larrimore, J. W. Edsall, C. L. Merriam, Locust Grove; George W. Ball, Benjamin K. Phelps, Elliott F. Shepard, J. A. Devereux, Mr. Maddox, Mr. Howell, H. W. Hughes, G. A. Brandreth, A. J. Dittenhoefer, Hon. W. A. Darling, of New-York; W. H. Roberts, G. Hilton Scribner, D. D. Bradley, A. Wright, H. B. Archer, of New-York; James L. Prosens, Capt. Joel B. Erhardt, D. H. Bruce, of Syracuse.

It is announced to-night that a pressure of business engagements will detain Hon. A. B. Cornell in New-York, and that he will not be in attendance at the Convention. If such should prove to be the case the convention will be called to order by Mr. Henry A. Glidden, of Orleans, the Secretary of the State Committee. So few delegates have arrived that it is impossible to say anything about the temporary or permanent Presidency of the convention. Indeed, it may be said that with the exception of Judge Pierrepoint, of New-York, and Lieut. Gov. Robinson, there have been no prominent arrivals to-day. But it is also true that none are expected to-night, for inquiries at the hotels prove that the rooms, almost without exception, have been engaged from Tuesday morning.

There is already some dissatisfaction caused by the New-York Central Railroad. Special rates were accorded to the Democratic Convention at Syracuse last week, by which $4 were saved on the round trip from the city. Inquiries made at the office of the General Ticket Agent, at the Forty-second street depot, developed the fact that no such favor would be extended to the Republicans. Special rates could be had by any one desiring to buy 100 tickets. When the official was asked why the company had made fish of one party and flesh of the other, no satisfactory answer was given.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 21.—The first notable caucuses to elect delegates to the Republican State Convention were held to-night. These were in Salem, and the delegates chosen were pledged to vote for Dr. George B. Loring for candidate for Governor. The movement for Dr. Loring as a compromise candidate, to prevent the threatened split in the party if Lieut. Gov. Talbot is nominated, owing to his attitude as a pronounced Prohibitionist and an opponent to any change, even if a majority of the Legislature should be in favor of one, is declared to be strong. Meanwhile the friends of Speaker Sanford and Hon. Alexander H. Rice, of this city, are by no means inactive, and the out-and-out Prohibitionists are driving relentlessly ahead with their work.

To-day the Methodist preachers, at their regular weekly meeting, resolved, though by no means unanimously, in favor of the nomination of Mr. Talbot, and, moreover, "that if the Republican Party nominate for Governor a man who is known to be in favor of a license law or an anti-Prohibitionist," they pledge themselves to vote, and use their influence to induce others to vote, against his election.

To-night, at a meeting of those Labor Reformers who were dissatisfied with the action of the labor convention, held some weeks ago in Framingham, in deciding not to put a State ticket in the field, it was resolved to call a second convention, and nominate a list of candidates to be run as a party ticket. The convention will be held two days after that of the Republicans.

Several small robberies have occurred at various points recently, and before daybreak this morning Bates & Son's dry-goods store at Rhinebeck was broken open, evidently by river pirates, and robbed of dress-goods to the value of $2,000. WASHINGTON.

THE SAFE BURGLARY CASE.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 21.—The trial of the Safe Burglary cases has been fixed for the 20th of October, by order of the court. When the case was called, to-day, Mr. Riddle, counsel for the Government, stated he would not be ready to go to trial for at least four weeks. The counsel for Harrington and Williams asked in their behalf a speedy trial. There is some reason to doubt that Whitely and Nettleship can be convicted, as the fertility of their resources in getting evidence is well known. There is also a report that they will shield themselves behind an official order, which has not yet been brought into the case, said to be signed by Mr. Sawyer, the late Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. The truth of this and many other rumors can be tested only by the public trial, which is now likely to proceed next month without further hindrance.

DISBURSEMENTS BY RECRUITING OFFICERS.

A decision of the Second Controller relating to disbursements by officers of the army, is working some inconvenience to the War Department, especially in the business of recruiting. It has been the practice for many years to advance funds to army officers detached for service in recruiting, and such officer has made the necessary disbursements directly. The decision now made is that army officers are not exempt from the operation of the law which requires all persons charged with disbursements of public money to be bonded, and it would be very difficult for most of these officers to give the necessary security. The department must draw the money for disbursement by regularly bonded officers, who can take the responsibility, if they choose, of transferring it to officers not bonded; but this would be of doubtful legality. The decision has caused considerable temporary embarrassment. The custom of allowing military officers to disburse money without giving bonds is said to have had its origin in the necessities of the war, and never to have been in accordance with law. The reduction of the army by casualties, discharges, &c., during the last few months has been very rapid, and the force is now 7,000 below the number of 25,000 fixed by law, and it is necessary that some mode of continuing the recruiting must be soon devised.

THE CONTRACTS FOR PRINTING STAMPS.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has awarded to three bank note companies of New-York, the National, American, and Continental, $250,000 worth of work in printing stamps. This will cause, it is estimated, a reduction of the force in the Printing Bureau here to the number of 260.

PERSONAL.

Secretary Bristow has gone to Kentucky, and will be absent four or five days.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

EXHIBIT OF THE POST OFFICE MONEY ORDER DEPARTMENT.

The exhibit made by the Money Order Division of the Post Office Department for the year ending June 30, 1874, is very flattering. The amount of orders issued was $75,424,854, against $57,516,216 last year, which was $9,000,684 more than the preceding year. The fees on orders issued amounted to $461,322, being $106,720 more than last year. The expenses were $360,508, or $70,590 more than last year. The orders issued on British account amounted to $1,491,320; the fees, $44,508. The British orders paid amounted to $303,773. Last year the British orders issued amounted to $1,364,376; the fees, $40,504; British orders paid, $215,087. German orders issued, $701,634; fees, $19,288; orders paid, $535,216. The exchange of orders with Germany commenced Oct. 1, 1872. The Swiss Money Order exchange shows no material change from preceding years. The large increase in the amount of domestic orders is partially due to the late panic, when other drafts were paid in certified checks, while Post Office orders were always paid in actual money.

DEPOSITS FROM NATIONAL BANKS TO SECURE CIRCULATION.

The Second National Bank of St. Louis has deposited with the Controller of the Currency $225,000 in legal tenders, for the purpose of reducing its circulation. The Merchants' National Bank, of Providence, R. I., has deposited $63,900; the First National Bank of Millersburg, Ohio, $27,000; the First National Bank of Kansas City, Mo., $27,000; and the Teutonic National Bank, of New-Orleans, $180,000, all for the purpose of reducing circulation. The total amount of legal tenders transmitted to the Controller of the Currency by banks throughout the country for the purpose of reducing circulation exceeds $7,000,000.

TREASURY BALANCES.

The balances in the United States Treasury at the close of business to-day were: Currency, $14,665,947; special deposits of legal tenders for the redemption of certificates of deposit, $60,445,000; coin, $73,867,236, including $28,651,340 in coin certificates; outstanding legal tenders, $382,000,000.

THE BRITISH CLAIM AWARDS PAID.

The award to British claimants made by the Mixed Commission appointed under the twelfth article of the treaty of Washington, dated Sept. 25, 1873, was, by the terms of the treaty, to be paid within one year from the date of the award. At 12 o'clock to-day, Mr. Watson, the British Chargé d'Affaires, and Mr. Howard, the agent appointed by the British Government, called at the State Department by appointment, and were paid the sum of $1,929,819 in gold, less the amount of two and a half per cent. allowed for expenses.

PROPOSALS FOR NEW LIFE-SAVING STATIONS.

The Secretary of the Treasury will in a few days invite proposals for the erection of new life-saving stations on the coasts of Maryland and Virginia, as follows: Smith's Island, near the light-house; Cobb's Island, Hog Island, abreast of the light-house; Cedar Island, near Wachapreague Inlet; Chincoteague, near the light-house on Assateague Beach, and at Green Run Inlet.

GEN. SHERMAN'S HOUSE.

Gen. Sherman has sold his residence on I street to Ex-Mayor Emory. It will be remembered that, prior to his election to the Presidency, this was the house of Gen. Grant, the gift of New-York friends. Subsequently it was purchased from the President by the friends of Gen. Sherman, and presented to him in 1869. The property was also once owned by Vice President John C. Breckinridge, who, with Senators Douglas and Rice, built the block.

NOVA SCOTIA NOTES.

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 21.—The weather has been very thick and rainy for the past three days. The steamers Nova Scotian from Baltimore, George Shattuck from St. Pierre, and Carroll from Boston arrived here to-day. The steamer Falmouth, from Portland, has not yet arrived. The temporary Marine Hospital at North Sydney, C. B., was destroyed by fire recently. The schooner Anne of Arichat came into collision with an unknown bark off the Cape Breton coast, and succeeded in getting into Sydney in a sinking condition. A dismasted and abandoned bark was passed off the coast on the 8th inst.

INDEPENDENT ORDER OF ODD-FELLOWS.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 21.—The annual convention of the Grand Lodge of the United States, Independent Order of Odd-fellows, is being held in this city, the session beginning at 9 o'clock this morning. The order in Atlanta and vicinity turned out in large numbers to receive the Grand Lodge, who were escorted to the Capitol, where an address of welcome was delivered by Past Grand Sire Miller, which was responded to by Deputy Grand Sire M. J. Durham. The business during the session to-day was only of a routine nature, and there will be but little final legislation until Wednesday. There are many prominent members of the organization present at the convention, including Governors of States, Mayors, Judges, merchants, and bankers from all the principal cities. During the session several grand entertainments will be given in honor of the Grand Lodge. The reports of the Grand Officers show the Order of Odd-fellows to be in a flourishing condition throughout the general jurisdiction, including the British Dominion, the Sandwich Islands, Australia, Germany, and South America.

THE STATE TREASURY EMBEZZLEMENT.

THE CASE OF CHARLES H. PHELPS IN OYER AND TERMINER POSTPONED TILL FRIDAY.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 21.—The case of Chas. H. Phelps, charged with larceny and forgery while employed in the office of the State Treasurer, was called in the Court of Oyer and Terminer this afternoon. District Attorney Moak, for the prosecution, and Messrs. Chapman and Hadley for the defense, were present. Mr. Chapman moved a postponement for two weeks, and in support of the motion read a certificate from Dr. Cram, of Brooklyn, to the effect that Judge Birdseye, Sen., counsel for the defense, was confined to his bed from a severe and serious illness. He also read an affidavit by Judge Birdseye, setting forth the facts of his illness and inability to attend; and another affidavit made by himself, (Chapman,) that he was not fully prepared to go on with the case. The District Attorney said he emphatically objected to any postponement, and Judge Westenbrook denied the motion. W. J. Hadley, of the counsel for the defense, stated the position the defendants' counsel were placed in by this decision, and also said, that the District Attorney had decided to try a different one of the indictments from that he had agreed upon with Judge Birdseye. The District Attorney then asked for a postponement till Wednesday, owing to the absence of important witnesses. After addresses by Mr. Hadley and District Attorney Moak, the court decided to postpone the case till Friday. Mr. Hadley having asked a postponement till Monday, the court thought a jury could be obtained by Saturday, and the case go on on Monday.

PURSUIT OF STAGE ROBBERS.

THEY ARE DRIVEN TO THE MOUNTAINS, SURROUNDED, AND PROBABLY CAPTURED.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 21.—The following was received to-night from Hot Springs, Ark.: "One of the party in pursuit of the stage robbers returned for reinforcements last night, and reported that the pursuit became so hot that the robbers took to the mountains, forty miles from this place, where they were at the time he left. Parties who saw the robbers just before they left the road say their horses were completely used up and could not go further. The citizens of the whole country around the vicinity have joined in the pursuit, and when the courier left the robbers were entirely surrounded. A party of recruits left here at midnight for the scene of action, and it is probable the robbers have all been captured and killed by this time."

LOSSES BY FIRE.

A destructive fire occurred at Carrollton, Ky., Sunday. One-half of the most valuable block of buildings in the centre of the town was destroyed. The principal sufferers are Messrs. Thurman, Martin, Booker, and Hamilton & Smith. The amount of the losses is not stated.

Private advices report the burning of the Marietta and Cincinnati Railway machine shops at Parkersburg, West Virginia, Sunday, together with the round house, one locomotive, and the blacksmith's shop. The loss is not less than $20,000. The fire was the work of an incendiary.

About 2 o'clock yesterday morning, a fire occurred in William Walton's cigar store, at Saw mill Run, Pittsburg, Penn., which was not discovered until it had made considerable headway, and before the firemen arrived the flames had communicated with the frame house occupied by A. Huffnagle as a dwelling and meat shop, and to the end of the Pan-handle Railroad Bridge. The Frey House, Duffy's saloon, Augustine's grocery, and Mrs. Mitchell's boarding-house were also destroyed. Three spans of the railroad bridge were destroyed.

Four incendiary fires occurred at Helena, Montana Territory, Sunday night. The first alarm at 11:30 o'clock was caused by fire in a building on Main street occupied by Bailey, jeweler, and McMurphy, fruit-dealer. Shortly after Mr. Hall's house, near the corner of Broadway and Rodney street, was discovered to be on fire, and subsequently a fire broke out in the Court-house. Very little damage was done in the above instances, as everything was soaked by the recent rains, and the losses were principally caused by moving goods; but a fire at the Hot Springs destroyed a building occupied as a saloon and dance hall. One man has been arrested on suspicion of setting the fires.

ARKANSAS POLITICS.

VIEWS OF A SOUTHERN REPUBLICAN.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION BECOMES A DEMOCRATIC NOMINATING CONVENTION—BAXTER'S ATTITUDE—THE NOMINATIONS MADE—A SQUARE CONFEDERATE TICKET.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Thursday, Sept. 10, 1874.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The notable event of to-day was the nomination of a ticket for State officers by the Democratic Convention held in the State-house. The venerable Bourbons who for the last two months have been in session as a Constitutional Convention, ended their labors as such yesterday by passing an ordinance abolishing instanter the constitutional offices of Lieutenant Governor, Commissioner of Public Works, and Superintendent of Public Instruction, then adjourned as a Constitutional Convention, and, within an hour or two, reassembled as a Democratic Convention for the nomination of candidates for the State offices prescribed by the new Constitution. The time of the three sessions of the convention held yesterday was spent in the usual preliminary skirmishing over organization, the two-thirds rule, &c., and to-day the convention settled in good earnest down to its work, and in a brief time agreed upon "the slate." For some time past, public curiosity in regard to the convention has been strongly exercised upon two points: First, whether the convention would make Baxter the nominee for Governor; and, second, whether it would make a "straight-out" Democratic ticket, or give a place or two to the allies who had been attracted from the ranks of the so-called Conservatives and Liberal Republicans. The curiosity was greatest in regard to Baxter, as many of the delegates were outspoken in their hostility to him, and during the first day of the session he was bitterly denounced as cowardly, vacillating, and contemptible, in speeches of length and ability delivered by influential men. In connection with this, a rumor had been for some time current that Baxter had held the threat that if the convention did nominate him he would resign, and thereby place the Lieutenant Governor, Smith, a thoroughbred Republican, in the Executive office, in terrorim over the heads of the recalcitrant Democracy. This was the explanation given for the singular action of the convention in assuming to abolish the office of Lieutenant Governor, by a simple ordinance, taking immediate effect; and there can be but little doubt of its truth. For these reasons a split and a bolt from the convention was, by many, confidently expected, and it was a matter of surprise when it was announced that the two-thirds rule had been voted down and Baxter nominated by a simple majority at the evening session of the first day. This morning partially explained the mystery, a letter being read in the convention conveying the information that Baxter declined to accept the nomination, and one passing the groups of politicians discussing the matter on the street corners could frequently hear such expressions as "the Lieutenant Governor is out of the way now," "a put up job," &c., &c. Whether or not the explanation hinted at in these expressions is correct is, of course, matter of mere conjecture; but it seems to be not far from the truth. The other question, whether the Bourbons would give any places on the ticket to Conservatives and renegade Republicans, was, after the disposal of the Baxter matter, disposed of in the most decided and summary manner; and a ticket was made out composed, with but one unimportant exception, of Bourbons of the most intense and pronounced description—men whose happiest moments of existence were probably spent in the Confederate army. The fact that a good Confederate army record was the surest passport to the favor of the convention, was strongly illustrated by the prompt squelching administered to several of the candidates who predicated their hopes upon other considerations. One of the candidates was a Northern man, who had served in the Union army, but he, doubtless, regarding these offenses as being condoned by his having, during the Brooks-Baxter war, warmly espoused the cause of the latter, and rendered him important services, both here and in Washington, entered the lists as a candidate against an old Confederate Lieutenant Colonel, and for his pains had the pleasure of being distanced in the first heat. The names of two old citizens were mentioned—one of whom was a Baxter man, the other had supported Brooks, and both had been Unionists during the war. Of course they were set aside. From the annexed summary, which gives the name and record of the various candidates, the character of the convention and that of its nominees will be apparent at a glance:

A. H. Garland, the candidate for Governor, was a member of the Arkansas Secession Convention, and, subsequently, a Confederate State Senator and Baxter's leading counsel in his litigations with Brooks.

David Walker, one candidate for Associate Justice, was President of the Arkansas Secession Convention.

W. S. Harrison, the candidate for the Second Associate Judgeship, is the exception noted above as unimportant. His unimportance during the rebellion prevented him from having a war record of any kind, and renders it unnecessary to say much about him. It is said that his policy during the war was unimportant neutrality, and he seems to hold the same relation to the Democratic ticket.

T. J. Churchill, candidate for Treasurer, a Confederate Major General.

John R. Eakin, candidate for Chancellor, a Confederate Colonel.

J. N. Smithee, candidate for Commissioner of State Lands, was a Confederate Captain.

The last-named candidate is also an assistant editor of the Democratic newspaper here, and telegraphic agent of the Associated Press. The ticket is already appropriately designated "The Confederate Ticket."

TOOMBS' BLUSTER.

The Atlanta correspondent of the Augusta Chronicle reports Toombs to have said in his recent speech there that he held in contempt men who, greedy after pilfer and gain, sycophantly sued for pardon, and bowed to their conquerors in order to save their property, and to make money out of the Government. Such men were unworthy the name of men. First came the Thirteenth Amendment, and they bowed and submitted; then the Fourteenth, and they bowed and submitted; then came the Fifteenth, and they bowed and submitted; then military dictators and bayonets, and they bowed and submitted. He never had bowed and submitted; he never would; he acquiesced because it was law, because he could not help himself; but he would submit no longer than he could help it. He was a rebel, and gloried in the name. He hated the Yankees when he voted for secession, and he hated them ten times worse now. He never would willingly submit to their tyrannic oppressions. He never had bowed to their demands. In truth, he never would have surrendered; he would have continued the war; he never would have surrendered at Appomattox; he would have taken to the woods, established his stronghold in the mountain fastnesses, and defied his enemies till death!

FREAK OF VEGETATION.

The Adrian (Mich.) Times says: "Two years ago Mr. R. A. Bury had upon his grounds a Concord grape-vine that had been in bearing several years. In the Winter of 1871-2 the vine was killed down to the ground. The following Spring new shoots came up from the roots, which in shape of leaves and manner of growth were very dissimilar to the Concord. Last year it bore fruit, which proved to be the fox-grape of Massachusetts, of which the Concord is a seedling. This year the vine bore the same kind of fruit, some of which Dr. Underwood brought to our office last evening, and they are unmistakably the fox grapes."

KILLED BY A BLOW WITH THE FIST.

A convict in the Kansas State Prison was killed by another prisoner on Wednesday afternoon last. It seems that James Tracy and Jack Green, alias David Muncie, were at work together in the stone-cutting yard when some words passed between them, enraging Tracy, who walked up to Green and struck him with his fist on the temple. Both parties were put under arrest and marched to their cells. Green complained of a headache and sent for Dr. Carpenter, the prison physician, who responded promptly, but could not aid the man. In [illegible] he became insensible and remained so until his death at 6 o'clock in the evening. A post mortem examination revealed the fact that his skull was fractured in two places, though there were no outward signs of it. Coroner Williams held an inquest, and a verdict was rendered in accordance with the facts above related. A warrant, charging Tracy with murder, was served, and he was placed under strict surveillance. Tracy was convicted of a robbery in Doniphan County, Kan., and sentenced to two and a half years' imprisonment from Dec. 8, 1873. He had previously served a term in the Missouri State Penitentiary. Green was convicted of forgery in Johnson County, and sentenced to five years from April 19, 1873.

THE WORK OF CONGRESS.

WHAT WAS DONE BY THE REPUBLICANS AT THE LAST SESSION.

In the course of his speech, accepting the Republican nomination for re-election to Congress in the Twenty-second District of this State, Hon. Ellis H. Roberts said:

In Congress, during the past year, actual good has been accomplished and real mischief avoided. You saw how the country was rocked by the angry waves of financial discussion. Lines were drawn by sections, and again interests and passions threatened factions bounded by geographical limitations. The danger was put down by the adjustment, which received a very large majority in both Houses, and was signed by the President. By it the public faith was maintained. Correctly or otherwise, all action of the Government had assumed that the limit of legal tenders was $400,000,000. The act of last June reduced this aggregate to $382,000,000. After sharp contest, all efforts to overleap this barrier were checked. This is the rock bottom for legal tenders. They cannot be sunk as the Continental money and French assignats were sunk, by further issue. The nation has refused to enter upon a new career of expansion. Its face has been turned squarely and positively toward the golden goal. The next duty is to make the paper promise to pay one dollar worth as much as the gold dollar fresh from the mint. Every interest of industry and of trade demands that the dollar which the Treasury pays to every debtor, to the crippled soldier, and the widow and orphan for pensions, shall equal the dollar which the Government requires of the citizen for duties at the Custom-house. The people's paper must be made as good as gold. One most efficient means to that end is the reduction of expenditures. The record proves how bravely and how radically Congress at its late session enforced retrenchment and economy. It cut down appropriations $20,000,000 below those for the preceding year, and $32,366,653 below the original estimates for the current year. Such retrenchment costs effort, and should have popular approval. The alternative was the increase of taxation. Not a few deemed this necessity unavoidable. New taxes in time of peace, however, ought not to be tolerated. By careful calculation and unflinching courage they were avoided. Without a penny of added burdens, handsome reductions of the principal of the public debt are returned for every month. The five per cent. bonds have been sold on more favorable terms than so large a negotiation was ever made upon before. The interest will thus be further diminished and taxes can be taken off in due time, and not increased.

The Forty-third Congress has also refused to disturb our great producing industries by opening wider the doors for foreign competition. An unparalleled shock had disturbed labor, had stricken down capital. The hour was not auspicious for even considering whether our idle furnaces, our suspended factories, our half-closed shops, could endure the abolition of duties on foreign products like their own. Adjustments of duties are to come. Let them not add to business paralysis. Oneida County at least will resist organized war by legislation upon producing industries on our own soil. It will contribute to that policy which shall produce the necessary revenue by the simplest and least onerous methods, and which by moderation shall secure stability. A part of the retrenchment of Congress was the repeal of the law increasing the salaries of its own members. The majority by which the increase had been carried had included both parties. Your Representative had resisted it at every stage, and had refused to be profited by the back-pay, returning it to the Treasury of the United States. To the extent of his ability he helped to repeal the law, and reduce the salaries. It was Republican effort and Republican energy which accomplished the repeal. It illustrates the prompt responsiveness of the Republican Party to the best and highest public sentiment. Honor is due for the act, and it will be generously rendered.

But the labor of labors in government, as in individual life, is self-purification. It is not easy to check and punish weakness and frauds in another party. Much harder is it to insist that duty shall be fully performed by your own friends, to drive out the shuffling and the shabby, and to lash the ill-deserving. Yet this has been done by the Republican Party in the Forty-second and Forty-third Congresses. Without favoritism, even with more than judicial scrutiny, with the zeal of prosecutors, Republicans struck directly at the heart of abuses. Such Democrats, partisans of partisans, as Beck, of Kentucky, and Clymer, of Pennsylvania, were compelled to recognize the thoroughness of investigation and the swift and condign punishment. Let a purified Treasury be the proof of Republican virtue and courage. Let a reformed Government in the District of Columbia tell of rigid scrutiny and of prompt action. Let the reduction of salaries, the diminution of offices, and the abolition of excessive emoluments, testify to prompt response to an intelligent public conscience. Let the retrenchment achieved be pledge of retrenchment and economy to be accomplished. Better than promise or platform is the record of the Republican Party in reforming and purifying its own administration. More of this work is constantly presenting itself. Government must be kept under continual discipline. It is the price of integrity and efficiency. It is the essential condition of faithful and creditable administration.

ANDY JOHNSON SPEAKS AGAIN.

Ex-President Andrew Johnson appeared before the people of Gallatin, Tenn., on the 18th inst., not, as he said, to use flowery language and say things that were merely pleasing to the ear, but to talk to them about solid, sensible facts. He spoke at considerable length on mechanical and agricultural questions, and alluded in the most favorable terms to the Grangers. He said that the granger and the mechanic, and the laboring classes, claimed a better representation in the legislative halls of the country, to the exclusion of the parties who had represented them heretofore. Lawyers had been allowed to occupy high places. Legal talent was necessary in the legislative halls, and so was the good, hard, solid business sense of the merchant, mechanic, farmer, and the laborer. Out of 293 persons, representatives in the Congress of the United States, he said, there were scarcely farmers enough to make up a committee on agriculture, nor mechanics enough to make up a committee on subjects relating to their branch of trade. The drought of the past year had greatly damaged the prospects of the farmer, but no less those of the mechanic, for one depended upon the other. The farmer might own good land, with fine, rich soil, and all that, but it was worthless to him unless the things wrought by the skill of ingenious mechanics were brought into requisition. But with all their hard and honest toil, droughts would sometimes come and misfortunes would follow. In ordinary times it was hard enough to make a livelihood, with a little something to lay up for a rainy day, but with the drought things became worse and more discouraging. By the time the farmer paid his taxes, his hands for working in the crops, got his crops ready for the market, and paid the transportation bill for shipping them to market, and had them sold, he had nothing left for the vast amount of labor expended. He had seen eleven columns of advertisements of tax sales in a Memphis paper, and the taxes there aggregated six per cent., and the same rule would apply to a very great extent to Nashville. Large quantities of property had been advertised there for sale. The taxes were six per cent. The farmers did not average more than a profit of four per cent., showing that they were plunging steadily into debt. Where, under such circumstances, was the country going to? Where would they be if their taxes kept up at that rate, with only a gain of four per cent? Mr. Johnson then complimented the ladies, who, he said, were never lacking in doing that which would result in the most good. But he said there were too many soft-handed young men, the sons of hard-working farmers. They were ashamed to work, unwilling to work, because they thought it degrading to them. They did not care to roll up their sleeves and delve in the soil, and make an honest living. They would rather sit around and do nothing. They should wake up to a different realization, and make up their minds to be men, to be tillers of the soil, one of the proudest avocations a man could follow. As for his trade, he had never been ashamed of it, and hoped he had never done it any dishonor.

THE TICKET AGENTS' CONVENTION.

The General Passenger Ticket Agents' Association resumed their session yesterday morning at the St. Nicholas Hotel, and continued the business of arranging the rates upon the various railroad lines represented at the convention. To-day they expect to close the work, and the result of their deliberations will then be given to the public. The members of the association who accepted the invitation of the Fall River Line, and left on Saturday evening to spend Sunday in Boston, returned yesterday morning. The party numbered about fifty, and was under the leadership of Mr. George Connor, General Passenger Agent. Before leaving the boat resolutions thanking the managers of the Fall River Line for their liberality and courtesy toward the association were adopted.

SUIT TO SET ASIDE A JUDGMENT.

In March last the Security Bank of this City brought a suit in the Supreme Court to recover $50,000 from the National Bank of the Commonwealth, which amount was said to have been loaned to that bank, and for $3,500, an alleged balance of account for money deposited by the plaintiff. A judgment for the full amount was rendered by default. Now, Mr. John J. Knox, Controller of the Currency, and Mr. Isaac H. Bailey, who was appointed Receiver of the National Bank of the Commonwealth when that institution went into liquidation, have filed a bill in equity in the United States Circuit Court, praying that the judgment be set aside, and that the Security Bank be restrained from taking any action under the judgment. In the bill filed it is alleged that the suit in the Supreme Court was commenced through George Ellis, the President of the Bank of the Commonwealth, with the intention of defrauding the creditors, and that both Knox and Bailey were ignorant of any such suit, and had never been served with the summons in the action.

THE COLLEGE OF THE CITY OF NEW-YORK.

The various text books having been distributed to applicants on Wednesday last, the first recitation of the College of the City of New-York took place yesterday morning. There are in the Senior Class thirty-two pupils; in the Junior, sixty; in the Sophomore, 100, and in the Freshman, 180, making a total of 372. Each class, except the Senior, has a larger membership than it had last year. Of the 180 Freshmen just entered, 100 have preferred the ancient course, including Greek and Latin, the remaining eighty taking the modern course, including French, German, and Spanish. The examination to the Introductory Department was successfully passed by 560 applicants, but it is probable that about 100 of these merely passed for the sake of passing, and will never enter the class as students. This leaves 460 members of the introductory class, who have divided themselves about equally between the commercial course, which is concluded in a year, and the course preparatory to the regular four years' course of the college. The usual repairs have been made during the Summer. The Historical Cabinet of Prof. C. E. Anthon, LL. D., has been placed in the building, several editions of German historical books have been added to the library, and the philosophical cabinet has been enriched by the addition of an imported air-pump, which is thought to be the largest and finest instrument in any college. The "New-York College Boating Association" organized yesterday by the election of temporary officers, and decided on sending a crew to the next inter-collegiate race. The club numbers some 300 members.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.

In the Court of General Sessions yesterday, Judge Sutherland presiding, Assistant District Attorney Nolan prosecuting, Lizzie Miller pleaded guilty to petit larceny, and was sent to the Penitentiary for six months....Frank Kratzer, charged with stealing $50 from Caroline Besinger, on the 16th of August, pleaded guilty to an attempt, and was sentenced to one year in State Prison....Charles O'Neil, (jointly indicted with John Keating,) was placed on trial charged with breaking into the saloon of August G. Zimmerman, No. 199 Mercer street, on the 8th of August. The evidence having shown that Zimmerman was not the owner of the premises in question, the Court directed a verdict of not guilty on the ground of variance between the indictment and proof, and O'Neil was remanded to await the finding of a new indictment by the Grand Jury....John Daley, charged with the larceny of a watch and chain, valued at $40, from the person of James Gilhooly, at No. 1,006 Third avenue, on the 23d of August, was found guilty and sent to State Prison for four years....Hugh Morion, a river thief, indicted for stealing two coils of Manila rope, valued at $40, from a vessel lying at the foot of Washington street, Brooklyn, on the 6th of August, was placed on trial. The prisoner, together with a confederate, brought the stolen property to Pier No. 45 East River, New-York, where the former was arrested, his companion having managed to escape. Morion was found guilty and sent to State Prison for four years and six months....John Metzer pleaded guilty to an attempt at burglary, and was sent to State Prison for two years and six months....Thomas B. Prentice was also sentenced to two years and six months in State Prison, having pleaded guilty to an attempt at grand larceny.

THE OCEAN STEAM RATES.

The competition of the transatlantic steamship companies for the eastward-bound steerage-passengers is still increasing. The Cunard and State lines are selling steerage tickets to Liverpool at $15 currency. Other lines are asking from $22 to $27. The members of the New-York Conference will meet again to-day, and endeavor to settle the questions at issue between the National, and the Cunard lines relative to the emigrant rates from Liverpool to Boston, and freights to New-York, and thus form another combination to keep the steerage rates up to $25. It is not probable that rates will be much higher this week.

MONDAY, Sept. 21—P. M.

The opening of the week brought with it a strong and cheerful feeling in speculative and commercial circles to-day, and in the Wall Street Markets especially there has been considerable activity and strengthening of prices. While it must be conceded that the large traffic of Wall street is purely speculative, and therefore does not represent, or rather does not belong to, the class of legitimate business, like the great branches of import and export and domestic mercantile enterprise, it is nevertheless indisputable that Wall street is the most sensitive indicator of the actual condition of the real business of the country, and is always co-ordinately affected with it. This being the fact, it is beyond question that the real business prospects of the country are in a very healthy and promising condition. Up to this time the market has been mainly sustained by two or three stocks, notably Union Pacific, Western Union, and Erie. To-day the whole list felt a stimulus which was not directly derived from any particular shares, but was rather the result of the improving state of affairs outside, among the merchants, the importers and exporters, aided, of course, by the various local causes which operate immediately on the prices of Stocks, chief among these latter being the late and greater prospective improvement in the earnings of all the principal railways. At the opening of the Stock Exchange to-day the whole list showed an improvement of ⅛@½ ℔ cent. on the strong closing prices of Saturday, Western Union selling in the first dealings at 78 ex dividend, equivalent to 80; Union Pacific at 35⅞; Lake Shore, 76½; Erie, 35⅝; New-York Central, 100⅜; North-western, 36⅛; Pacific Mail, 48⅛; St. Paul, 33⅛, and C., C. and I. C., 10¼. This was followed by an advance of ⅛ to ⅜ ℔ cent. in the leading shares, Pacific Mail alone showing weakness in a decline of ¼ ℔ cent., while the other shares were going up. At the Morning Board a strong buying movement was inaugurated, and the active shares made a further improvement of ⅛ to ⅜ ℔ cent., the respective advances being as follows: Western Union, Union Pacific, and Rock Island, each ⅜; Lake Shore, New-York Central, and North-western Common, each ¼, and the remaining stocks ⅛ ℔ cent. each. Pacific Mail and Wabash were exceptional and fluctuated almost incessantly on a range of ¼ ℔ cent. The dealings amounted to nearly 90,000 shares, of which nearly 20,000 were in Lake Shore, 7,000 in Western Union, 6,500 in Union Pacific, and in Pacific Mail and Wabash about 5,000 shares each. Among the investment shares business was active, and Panama sold up to 113; Delaware and Lackawanna, 109¼; Chicago and Alton, 98½; New-Jersey Central, 105¼; Illinois Central, 91; and Harlem, 125½. In the midday sales the market was firm at the advance in prices, but the transactions were light. The second call brought with it a renewal of the early activity and a strong upward movement in prices, in the course of which Erie went to 36¼; Union Pacific 36½; North-western, 37; Western Union, 78⅝; St. Paul, 33⅜; New-York Central, 101; Delaware and Lackawanna, 109½; and C. C. and I. C., which had opened at 10¼, touched 11⅞, and appeared quite strong, on considerable dealings, at 11⅝. Wabash and Pacific Mail were still wavering at the morning prices. In the final dealings, after the Call, the highest prices of the season were reached, when Erie bounded from 36¼ to 37; Union Pacific, 36¾; Lake Shore, 76¾; Western Union, 78¾. Rock Island, 102, and North-western, 37¼. The whole list felt the impetus, and the improvement of the day over Saturday's closing prices was: In Erie, 1⅞; in Union Pacific, Western Union, and North-western, 1⅛ each; Lake Shore and New-York Central, each ⅞; St. Paul Common and North-western Preferred, each ¾, and the remaining stocks ⅛@⅜ each; C., C. & I. C. improved 1⅝ also, and it is reported that there is a strong upward movement contemplated in this stock. The whole list was strong at the close on a buoyant market, the day's sales having reached about 200,000 shares, of which 54,000 were in Lake Shore, 35,000 in Union Pacific, and 29,700 in Western Union. The sharp advance in Erie was due to a rise to 34 in London, influenced doubtless by the expectations that the report of the English accountants as to the financial condition of the company will be made public to-morrow, together with the report of the Engineer of the British Board of Trade as to the state of the road and its equipment. The Money Market is without new developments of any kind, and Call Loans are still done at 2@2½ ℔ cent. Gold opened at 109⅝, which was the only premium rate until 2 P. M., when it went to 109½, and so continued to the end, on a dull market. The rates on Gold Loans were 1@2 per cent. for carrying, and "flat" for borrowing. Government Bonds were dull and generally a fraction lower, in sympathy with the Gold market. Foreign Exchange was quiet and steadier, with prime bankers' 60 days' sterling, for actual business, at $4 83½@$4 83¾, and $4 85¾@$4 86¼ for demand; Reichmarks, 94⅜@95¼; Cables, 95⅞; prime Paris francs, 5.16⅞@5.14⅜. London advices represent American Securities steady at the close, and the markets dull. Railway Mortgages here have been active and firm, with a further advance in the Pacific issues, Central selling up to 92 on large dealings; Union, first, 87⅛@87¼; Land Grants, 89, and Sinking Funds, 75@75⅜; Western Pacifics, 83@84; Chesapeake and Ohio, first, coupons on, 49½; New-Jersey Central, first, new, 105¼; Erie, second, at par. The Central Railroad Company of New-Jersey has disposed of the entire $1,000,000, balance of $5,000,000, Consolidated Mortgage Bonds, at 95, the price fixed by the Company. The proposals were to remain open until Oct. 1, but in this early and satisfactory negotiation of their bonds the management has just reason to feel gratified. These bonds have twenty-five years to run, and bear interest quarterly. State Securities have been without special feature to-day. Bank shares were inactive.

The Sub-Treasurer paid out $29,000 in redemption of called bonds and $30,000 for interest in Governments. The receipts for Customs were $485,000. The imports of specie for the week ending Saturday last were $82,716 gold coin, exclusively from the West Indies and the Spanish Main.

THE COURT OF ARBITRATION.

A number of important cases are ready for trial as soon as the new Court of Arbitration begins its session. The inauguration will take place in the second week of October, but the exact day has not been finally decided, as Judge Fancher has not yet returned from his Summer vacation. There will be a formal opening in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce, at which addresses will be made by prominent lawyers and merchants. The forms and rules of practice have been arranged, and are now being printed. In preparing them care has been taken to adhere to the mode of procedure in the State Courts, and to make them as brief as possible. Mr. George Wilson, the Clerk of the Court, will distribute them in a few days to members of the bar, and merchants generally.

A COURT INTERPRETER'S PAY.

Judge Loew, of the Court of Common Pleas, has rendered judgment in favor of Dr. Richard S. Rosenthal, interpreter of the Courts of General Sessions and Oyer and Terminer, for his pay at the rate of $3,500 per annum. The salary of Dr. Rosenthal's predecessor was originally $2,500, to which was added an additional $1,000 by the Board of Supervisors. This increase Controller Green refused to pay, denying the power of the Board of Supervisors to make it. Suit was brought to recover the amount, and while yet pending the plaintiff died. Subsequently a bill was passed by the Legislature legalizing the resolution of the Board of Supervisors, but the Controller also disputed the claim of the present interpreter on the ground that the resolution applied only to his predecessor in office. Judge Loew has now disposed of this answer as being frivolous, in giving judgment for plaintiff.

HONORS TO THE LORD MAYOR OF DUBLIN.

The Joint Committee of the Common Council met yesterday to make arrangements to extend Municipal courtesies to the Lord Mayor of Dublin and his friends. After a brief interchange of views, it was decided to make a trip around the island on Thursday next in the steamer Wyoming, the invitations, including those to the Lord Mayor and his friends, to be limited to 250. Alderman Van Schaick was requested to inform the Lord Mayor of the action of the committee, and Alderman McCafferty was selected to accompany him to the boat. The committee propose to give the Lord Mayor a public reception in the Governor's Room on some day to be determined upon.

BOARD OF ASSISTANT ALDERMEN.

In the Board of Assistant Aldermen, yesterday, Mr. Kelly submitted a resolution providing for the appointment of a committee to confer with the Department of Public Works in relation to the use of patented sidewalk covers, which are in violation of the ordinance recently passed by the Common Council. Some of the covers, it is claimed, are above the surface of the sidewalks. The resolution was adopted. The Aldermanic resolution assigning the use of the Governor's Room to the Grand Jury, was called up. Mr. Clancy said that there were other chambers in the City Hall vacant, and thought it would be better to allow the Grand Jury to meet in one of them than to devote the Governor's Room to the purpose. The resolution was lost. A communication was received from the Mayor containing a list of persons who paid fees for permits for signs, &c., up to the 1st of May. No other business of importance was transacted.

A SAVINGS BANK SWINDLED.

A few days ago a check on the Germania Bank for $950 was obtained from the Bond Street Savings Bank by a man representing himself as Charles Baldwin, to his own order. He introduced himself by a card obtained from one of the Savings Bank's Trustees, and deposited a fraudulent draft of the National City Bank of Cleveland, Ohio, and obtained the check for a smaller amount. BRET HARTE'S STORY.

"THE FOOL OF FIVE FORKS," Mr. Bret Harte's latest story, published for the first time in this journal on Sunday last, will be reprinted in the weekly and semi-weekly editions of THE TIMES. It is one of the best stories ever written by Mr. Bret Harte:—

"The story of Bret Harte which appeared in THE NEW-YORK TIMES yesterday, and which—through the courtesy of that journal in furnishing the Republican advance slips—we are enabled to present on page three this morning, is one of the best that has appeared from his pen for many a month. Alike in graphic description, clever characterization, and the peculiar humor and pathos which have rendered his name famous, Bret Harte has written few stories that excel "The Fool of Five Forks."—Springfield Republican.

To-day the delegates to the Republican Convention at Utica will begin to assemble, and to-morrow they will take in hand the important work which has been intrusted to them. The organs of the opposition will assail them with the stale old cry of "office-holders," and misrepresent everything they do, no matter with how much wisdom their course may be guided. If Gabriel himself came down to arrange the affairs of this convention, he would fail to satisfy the Democrats or their "Liberal" allies. But it is not to please these factions that the convention is called, but to represent the general body of the people; and therefore it is not likely to be much affected by the attacks of its avowed enemies. We trust that it will recommend men and measures worthy of the support of the community, and if it succeeds in that, the outcries of "office-seekers" will not do much harm even to "office-holders."

The journal which threw overboard all its principles and professions in 1872, in the hope of making its editor President, is still kind enough to offer advice to the party which it treacherously tried to stab. At present it has taken up the hob-goblin manufactured by the Herald, and labeled "Third Term." And it demands that the Republican Party shall declare to the world what it thinks about that interesting work of art. The subject, it pleads, "cannot be coughed down as an impertinence"—treatment to which the Professor seems only too well accustomed. "The issue is vital, present, pronounced." So says the oracle. Nevertheless, since we are still two years from the Presidential campaign, and since there are pressing subjects of the hour which need attention, it is not improbable that our own State Convention, and all others, will address themselves to the business immediately before them, and avoid being drawn into a wild-goose chase after the lame ducks of the Democrats. The third term question will be very easily disposed of whenever the proper time comes.

In the First Congressional District, which includes Richmond, Suffolk, and Queens Counties, a vacancy will be created by the retirement of Mr. SCUDDER. The choice of the people seems to have centred already on Mr. STEPHEN B. FRENCH, of Suffolk County, and there can be no doubt that he well deserves to receive the nomination. He is a man who has long had the control of many important trusts, and has discharged his duties in a way which has won for him the confidence of all who know him. He would carry long and active business habits into public life, and be not only of great service to his constituents, but a valuable acquisition to Congress. The hearty support of Mr. FRENCH seems, therefore, to be assured.

The World tries so hard to cover up the "dead horses" of its party that Senator LORD ought to feel some compunction for having introduced his resolution of censure in the State Convention. The Indiana Democrats recently declared in favor of paying the bonds in paper instead of gold. Gov. HENDRICKS made a speech on the 14th inst., in which he contended that the proper construction of the laws prior to 1869 supported this proposition, and that the act of 1869 "was a special favor to the holders of the bonds, to which they were not entitled, and it was a corresponding wrong to the tax-payers." But, the act being passed, Mr. HENDRICKS would obey it. And upon this the World cries out: "Thus the Democrats of every State of the Union are now of one mind in upholding the high principle of the Syracuse platform." This is too babyish to be called dishonest. The mere declaration of Mr. HENDRICKS' private opinion does not affect the deliberate resolutions of the Indiana Convention. Gov. HENDRICKS could not prevent that repudiation plank being inserted in the platform, and he cannot take it out. The attempt to make his words—sullen and ungracious as they are—outweigh the opinions of the convention would be dishonest if, as we said before, it were not so absurdly childish. And then there are Ohio and Missouri, which passed the same sort of resolutions, to be accounted for. Fancy ignoring these States altogether! This kind of advocacy of a party belongs to a by-gone period of politics, and produces very little effect in these days except to make everybody laugh.

We have now arrived at that season of the year when the Assessors of Taxes are making their valuations for 1875. We may be allowed to suggest to the Commissioners, who have performed their duties very faithfully, the propriety of taking into consideration the present tone of the market in reference to real estate. Would it be quite fair to put the assessments up as high this year as usual? The present depression in real estate will pass over, for Manhattan Island cannot grow any longer or wider, and people must live here. But in the meantime no injustice would be done in regulating assessments in accordance with the values of the hour.

As there may be doubts concerning Mr. TILDEN's true position in the present contest, we are glad to copy the following lucid explanation of it from yesterday's World. It is not only valuable as a piece of political information, but affords another example of that "superb English" upon the use of which the World is so frequently congratulated:

"The writer of this article was present at an interview in which one of the friends of Mr. TILDEN rallied him because he would not commit himself to take the nomination; and Mr. TILDEN laughingly replied that he admitted he had done everything to fritter away his chances if there were any and then went on to say that he did not fear the canvass, nor care for the hostility of the corrupt elements which were opposing him, that he had no doubt about the result of the election this Fall whomever the convention should nominate, but that after twenty years of incessant occupation intermitted at last by a four months' run in Europe and work, on half time only, during the rest of the year, he had instinctively recoiled as often as he approached a decision involving a return to his old life of unremitting occupation."

Five minutes are now allowed to take breath.

A DANGEROUS TENDENCY.

During the long and warm discussions that have arisen in connection with the work of reconstruction in the Southern States, we have had frequent occasion to remark the tendency to break through the restrictions imposed by the Constitution. This tendency has by no means been confined to the Republican Party. Though from chance it became the interest of the Democrats to enforce a strict observance of the narrowest construction of the fundamental law in regard to the Southern States, they have shown in other matters a great disregard even of their own principles. Many of them, for instance, sustained the issue of more greenbacks last year, and they were nearly all ready to vote for a new election in Louisiana. This tendency on all sides to make the end justify the means, and to strain a power if one could not readily be found without straining, was natural enough. It was one of the consequences of the war, when some of the efforts required to put down the rebellion were sustained by constructions that cannot now be denied to have been forced. In the case of the war powers, the questions raised are settled forever, and it will be folly of which only a Democratic convention can be capable to call them up again. But the tendency which the exercise of the war power has left behind is one that should be carefully watched.

It is one of the conditions of success for a written constitution that it shall be most faithfully and scrupulously observed. Only in that way can abuses be guarded against and the ambition of parties be kept in check. Under an unwritten constitution, a wrong step can be retraced, and leave no mark on the governmental system. A mistaken law once repealed, ceases to influence the country. But under a written constitution, a law unauthorized by a just construction of the powers of the Legislature gives a blow to the very frame-work of the government. It becomes violation of law under the forms of law. It establishes a precedent which has a force wholly out of proportion to the importance of the measure, and entirely disconnected with the motive. Though a party, led by good and able men, may step beyond the bounds of the Constitution for the very best purpose, they necessarily give countenance to transgression by bad men for a bad purpose. And they also disarm themselves for any adequate resistance to such transgression when it takes place.

An instance in point, and one to which the Republican Party would do well to pay more careful attention than it has yet done, is the Senate Civil Rights bill. That measure has been in terms, or by inference, indorsed by several Republican conventions in the North, though it has received a very cool reception by the Republicans of the South. We did not hesitate, when it was before the House last session, to express our own disapproval of it. But it stands on the calendar of the House with the indorsement of the Senate, and is likely to be called up for action one way or another next Winter. In our opinion it is a bill which seeks some ends not worth seeking at all, and seeks other very good ends by means entirely beyond the legitimate powers of Congress. It proposes to give to the colored people equal "enjoyment of the accommodations, advantages, facilities, and privileges of inns, public conveyances on land and water, theatres and other places of public amusement." We fail to find anywhere in the Constitution any authority for the assumption by Congress of the right to control theatres or inns, and if it existed, we question very seriously if it would be well to exercise it in the way proposed. The bill also guarantees equality in the advantages of common schools and public institutions of learning, supported in whole or in part by general taxation. This certainly, so far as it is meant to secure education to the negroes, pursues not only a praiseworthy, but a necessary, object of legislation. The negroes must be educated. If the States separately will not educate them, the Federal Government will be compelled to find means to do so. But surely no one will pretend that among the means authorized by the Constitution of the United States for this purpose is the subjection to a heavy fine of school-teachers and trustees who refuse to receive blacks with whites in State schools! This method of getting at the proposed object is at best clumsy and feeble. But it is also clearly unconstitutional, or, we might say, extra-constitutional.

Now, we beg our friends who think that this fact may safely be disregarded, to remember that our observance of the Constitution is absolutely essential to enable us to compel others to observe it. The sanctity of the fundamental law is all that stands in the way of the payment of the rebel debt, or compensation for slaves, or, to bring the case down to the very rights we are arguing, the overthrow of all the civil rights of the colored people. If, in our efforts to promote negro education, we set aside the necessity of a direct authority from the Constitution, can we expect the Democrats, if they should gain the power, to let the Constitution prevent them from helping their ancient and present friends? We are threatening the Constitution from a perfectly good motive, but good motives in politics are feeble as compared with selfish ones, and a Constitution which is violated by the one will not resist the force of the other.

The rights which the amended Constitution was intended to secure are important and clear. These ought to be firmly enforced. But if we strain that amendment to cover a crowd of things it never was meant to cover, we shall only break down its capacity for usefulness altogether.

THE DEMOCRACY AND THE SOUTH.

In a speech delivered at Indianapolis last week, Senator MORTON touched upon some points connected with the condition of affairs in Louisiana that should not be lost sight of in the present discussion. As the readers of THE TIMES very well know, we have not seen our way clear to any defense of the administration of Gov. KELLOGG. It is not unlikely that a majority of the people of the United States feel that the fraud and violence, out of which sprang what we now call the Kellogg Government, was a condition so little short of anarchy that even the administration of KELLOGG was only another form for the disorder that had preceded it. We do not believe that anybody pretends that Louisiana has yet returned to the normal condition of things. It is not probable order, content, and legitimate government will be established so long as he remains in the Gubernatorial chair. Nevertheless, Senator MORTON points out in his Indianapolis speech some antecedent circumstances which should not be lost sight of in any consideration of the general condition of Southern politics. It is as true in Louisiana and South Carolina as elsewhere that the present state of affairs is largely influenced and colored by what has gone before.

In Louisiana, for example, if we go back eight years, we recall the awful massacre of August, 1866. It cannot have escaped the memory of our readers that a Republican Convention was at that time broken up in New-Orleans by an armed mob, that more than two hundred men were killed or wounded in that attack, and that an impartial committee of Congress reported these facts, with statistics and particulars. In 1868, the State, heretofore governed by a Provisional Governor, was reconstructed, and, at a general election held in May of that year, the Republican State ticket was chosen by a majority of 26,000. The Kuklux was immediately organized, and, in the Summer following, more than 2,000 persons, white and black, were killed. These figures are not guess-work. Official documents, unhappily, verify the record. Terrorism and bloodshed did their perfect work. Counties that gave thousands of Republican votes in the Spring gave only hundreds in the Fall of that year; and in counties where hundreds of Republican votes were cast in May, only one or two votes were cast in November. Fear kept the voters away from the polls. Every intelligent student of American politics will remember the reign of terror that prevailed in the South during the last months of 1868. In Louisiana the domination of the anti-negro, anti-Republic, secret, oath-bound organizations, was complete. Republican newspapers then truly said that a word from the Democratic leaders in Congress would have stopped the wholesale slaughter going on in the South; they did not speak that word.

It is not necessary now to trace the history of the Louisiana election of 1872. It is claimed that KELLOGG was elected. The story of the Louisiana case in Congress is before the country. We have taken frequent occasion to say just what we thought of the merits of the question as presented by the contestants. But we must not forget that the frightful massacres of 1866 and 1868 were followed by one equally atrocious in 1873. The frightful butchery of one hundred negroes in Grant Parish, in April, 1873, has never been defended, so far as we have seen, by any Democratic authority, North or South. Nobody will pretend that these outrages have justified any fraud or political chicanery that may have followed. But least of all may the Democratic Party hold up hands of holy horror at what they call usurpation in the South. In the place of massacre and bloodshed we have cheating at the polls, and an attempt to get even by all tricks known to politicians. But we cannot forget who are the men now crying out against the enormous tyrannies of KELLOGG, and the high-handed rule of the Republican Party. They include the men who cut down the members of the New-Orleans Convention of 1866, who murdered two thousand citizens in 1868, and who burned and shot one hundred poor creatures in Grant Parish in 1873. We do not pretend to justify and uphold the administration of KELLOGG; but we should like the flippant critics who are so ready to bawl out "tyranny and oppression," to remember the awful scenes that went before the milder quarrel over the ballot-box in 1872. What is true of Louisiana is in part true of the whole South. We are certainly obliged to Senator MORTON for recalling the facts which make up the damning record of the Democratic Party in the North as well as the South. But for the course of that party in the North there would have been no rebellion. But for its course the war would have ended long before it did; and the Democratic Party, as we have said before, had power to stop the disorders in the South when they were at their worst, but maintained a sullen silence. In after years the South, redeemed and regenerated, as we believe it will be, may well reproach the unpatriotic and selfish party of the North with its indifference to, and tacit approval of the violence that even now prevails. The disorders of Louisiana, Tennessee, and other Southern States have retarded the prosperity of the South; they have set those States back in the path of progress many years. Business is unsettled, and the foundations of society are disturbed. What has done this most, the usurpations of dishonest men or the unbridled license of murderers and assassins? Let those judge who observe the signs of the times. We reiterate the words of the distinguished Senator to whose speech we have referred: There can be no peace in the South until the South recognizes and enforces the principle that the fundamental principle of this Government is liberty, equality, and equal rights to all. So long as this principle is menaced, North or South, there will be dissension and violence. We have no patience with the cock-and-bull stories of negroes arming for any purpose in time of profound peace and without provocation. They know their lives are daily menaced; and above every other question of the day is this: Shall every citizen be protected by law in his life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness?

ACCIDENTS ON THE FERRY-BOATS.

The numerous suits brought against the Staten Island Ferry Company, by the survivors of the Westfield disaster, stirred up many of the other companies to make some provision for the safety of their passengers in case of accident. Along with others, the Union Ferry Company largely increased the number of life-preservers on its boats, and provided at least two small boats to each steamer. At the same time, gates were erected at the ferry-houses to prevent persons from running after a boat when going out, or crowding on one when coming in. These gates seem to answer the purpose for which they were erected reasonably well, but it is questionable how much safer the passengers by that ferry now are than they previously were. The life-preservers are stowed away so as to be out of the reach of any person of ordinary height, while the boats carried on the upper deck are as carefully tied up and housed as if prepared for a sea voyage, and their launching is a matter requiring considerable time and work.

On two separate occasions last week, a man fell or jumped overboard from one of the boats crossing at the Hamilton Ferry, and in neither case was a rescue effected by the ferry hands. The pilot reversed the engines, but all further effort was left to the passengers. In the first instance, the man was rescued by a yawl from a schooner anchored not far away; while in the other, which happened at dusk, the procuring of life-preservers and the launching of a small boat proved to be such a slow process that the man, although evidently a fair swimmer, sank before help could reach him. If the boat hands had been efficient, they could have saved both of these men without outside assistance. The Union Ferry Company transports thousands of passengers daily, and is abundantly able to make every requisite provision for their safety. It was noticeable on both of these occasions that no person on the boat seemed to be sufficiently in charge to give orders as its Captain, and that while the deck hands did not make any effort to launch a boat, the stairway to the upper deck, where the boats are stowed, was securely locked, so that the passengers who did finally reach them had to climb up the outside.

It would not be a very difficult matter to have a gate at either end of a ferry-boat, which could be closed when leaving the slip, and kept shut during the passage. If one man were always stationed at the bow of the boat and another at the stern, they could watch such a gate, and in case of accident promptly notify the pilot. A life-preserver placed near the station of such a guard could be promptly detached, giving anyone who might accidentally fall overboard something to cling to till help could arrive. The boat hands should also be instructed how to proceed in case of accident, while little cards posted about the cabins could inform the passengers where life-preservers are to be found. Such provisions are simple, and, if not efficacious to prevent all accident, would at least show that the company was reasonably solicitous for the safety of its patrons. When the bridge is finished, passengers will have a choice of conveyance, but in the meantime the crossing to Brooklyn by ferry-boat ought to be made more secure.

ANOTHER WARNING TO DETECTIVES.

The security which prominent criminals enjoy from punishment, because of the defective organization of the detective force of our principal cities, has recently received conspicuous illustration in the case of BULLARD, the burglar. This man was the principal agent in the robbery of $400,900 from the Boylston Bank, in Boston, on the night of Nov. 20, 1869—a crime which at that time created great excitement throughout New-England, and set all the bankers trembling. A person named GLOVER was charged with the burglary, tried, convicted, and sentenced to twelve years in the State Prison. Public sentiment was partially satisfied, and the robbery was gradually forgotten by all except its victims. As soon as BULLARD, who was a professional cracksman, had stolen the money from the bank, he divided the plunder with a few confederates who had rendered him some little assistance, and quietly sailed for London. Although he was well known as a criminal, there appears to have been no watch kept on his movements at any time, and he encountered no difficulty in leaving the country. He was engaged for four weeks in drilling through the brick wall which gave access to the Boylston Bank vault, and during his trips to and from his nefarious work he appears never to have been endangered by prying eyes. He went and came as boldly as any honest man. Indeed, he seems to have cherished a cordial contempt for the efficiency of the detectives.

From London the burglar, loaded with his spoil, went to Paris, and boldly opened an elegantly-equipped drinking establishment. Young and elderly Americans hobnobbed with him across his gilded bar, balanced their heels upon his superb lounges, and gossiped over his champagne cocktails. He made investments, and they were profitable. But in a quiet and private way he occasionally encouraged a little gambling on his premises, and the strict Parisian authority soon presented him with an indictment for that offense. About this time, also, mysterious rumors that he had been engaged in a bank robbery crept about among his patrons, and he emigrated suddenly, leaving his property in the hands of a friend. He had apparently settled down in Paris, had married there, and was considered an ornament to the sporting profession, and his departure elicited much comment. After brief sojourns in Brighton and London, he embarked for America last February, and landed in Baltimore. This was a bold move, and the officers of justice, whose appetite for his arrest had been sharpened by his long absence, managed to discover that he had returned. So they began to follow him; but he concealed his movements with admirable skill, although he traveled very freely about the country. He had acquired habits of intoxication during his residence in Europe, and was the inmate of an inebriate asylum for some time. But, although he was "wanted" by the officers, and his capture would at any time have been considered a smart coup, he managed to keep out of their hands until about a fortnight since, when he was arrested while leaving the house of a professional burglar in Thirteenth street, in this City. He was at once taken to Boston, where he confessed himself the chief agent in the robbery, and informed the authorities that the man suffering sentence in the State Prison was entirely innocent. He was placed under $100,000 bail to answer to the charges against him. When arrested he informed the Boston detectives that he was much astonished, as he had not learned of their presence in New-York.

Here, then, we have the case of a professional criminal who seemed to have but little fear of the officers of the law, and who was generally much better informed concerning the movements of the detectives, his natural enemies, than they were of his. He, of course, knew them all by sight, since few, if any, officers of that class make any pretensions to concealing their profession, but advertise it as much and as loudly as they can. He was quite safe in both France and England for some time after it was known that he was the Boylston Bank robber; but, what is still more wonderful, he remained at liberty, and very much at ease, in this country from February to September, while detectives were "looking for him." This could not occur if the service were properly organized. No criminal as noted as BULLARD could feel safe from arrest in this City, or in any part of the United States, if the detective force were as efficient as it should be. No man who had been engaged in previous robberies would have succeeded in remaining at liberty in Boston long enough to do a job of burglary which occupied him steadily for a month, if the detectives there maintained proper surveillance of the criminal classes. No innocent man would have been sent to prison for burglary if the detectives had kept keen eyes on the movements of BULLARD when he started for Europe. Justice would have been satisfied, and society would have been protected against BULLARD five years ago, instead of a fortnight since, if the detectives had properly understood their business. It is not wonderful that Police agents are from time to time accused of collusion with criminals, when they are so blind to the movements and the whereabouts of members of the "dangerous classes."

A HEATHEN CONSCIENCE.

Particulars of the assassination of Mr. HABER, German Consul at Hakodadi, Japan, make that case appear difficult of ordinary treatment. The murderer was a native, who had no personal animosity toward the Consul. He was merely a fanatic, to whom, as he alleged, had been given Divine command to kill the foreigners who were making trouble in the country. The celestial message came to him like that of Joan of Arc, except that the Japanese recipient of the heavenly commission is particular to state the exact height of the heathen deity from whom he received it. This awful personage is said to have been nine feet high, and his name is O Kami Sami. Having gone out with his errand in his heart, the Japanese met Mr. HABER, who was then attacked and literally hacked to pieces with a short sword which the man carried. He undoubtedly believed that it was his duty to kill the foreigners; he had what he thought to be a Divine mandate, and he would not be disobedient to the heavenly vision.

The difficult point in this case is that religious fanaticism prevails among the lower orders in many parts of Japan. It is also yet partly the national custom to carry swords, as in the old days. The class known as samourai was warlike and military. If they should get in the way of seeing visions and dreaming dreams, they would make things very uncomfortable for the foreign population of Japan. The Government of the country is not unenlightened, but it is not Christian, nor yet wholly disenthralled from the ancient pagan beliefs. If there should be a fanatical prejudice, taking the form of assassination, a rising against foreigners, the Government would find itself very much embarrassed with its needful suppression. The German Government, of course, cannot accept any plea in mitigation of this outrageous offense except that the murderer was a monomaniac and utterly unaccountable. It is by no means certain that the mass of the people would approve such a plea by their Government, though they would have no voice in the matter. A German corvette was at last accounts sent to Hakodadi to compel explanation and investigation. The result will be awaited with interest.

PARIS AND ITS DEAD.

The method of disposing of the dead is a subject which always appeals to the interest of the living. In cities where a large population has been increasing for centuries, a day is pretty sure to come when it will force itself upon public consideration with much urgency. The Parisians seem to think that in their case that day has arrived. Since Paris proper expanded beyond its ancient limits, and all the suburban communes were annexed, the number of its inhabitants has been doubled. The dead have of course increased in the same ratio, and it has accordingly been necessary to provide resting-places for them where they shall not be a source of injury to the living. The means of burying, which were quite adequate to the city's requirements when it contained less than a million inhabitants, are now absolutely insufficient. When M. HAUSSMANN was Imperial Prefect of the Seine, earnest discussion on the subject had already brought out conflicting opinions in the Municipal Board. No action, however, was taken toward a final decision until very recently, when an ordinance was passed to the effect of creating, on the territory of Méry-sur-Oise, a large metropolitan cemetery, to be connected with Paris by means of a special railway.

This resolution relieves the Parisians from a great anxiety. They have been led for some time, through the observations and calculations of competent persons, to the conviction that all the room yet available in the cemeteries now in use will be occupied within three years. There was, therefore, no time to be lost in finding some way out of the impending difficulty, and none is to be lost now in carrying out the plan which has been adopted.

Paris contains twenty burial-grounds of various dimensions. The largest and most important is the Cemetery de l'Est, better known as Père La Chaise. It comprises about one hundred and ten acres, and, between the 21st of March, 1804, and the 1st of January, 1874, it provided, according to Maxime Du Camp, for 688,470 interments. Next to it in size is the Cemetery Montmartre. It embraces fifty acres, and is the resting-place of 382,937 bodies. The Cemetery Mont Parnasse, third in rank, has only been opened since 1824. It has an area of about forty-eight acres, and no less than 422,506 burials have taken place in it.

But these three, and fifteen other smaller cemeteries within the walls, are no longer fit for the reception of the dead. They are so crowded that no interments are any longer allowed in them, unless in private lots owned in fee simple. What the French call temporary concessions and free trenches are closed. There is no room left. The guardians of public health have been cognizant of this dangerous state of things for years, and have raised the cry of alarm: "Paris has no cemetery; what is to be done with our dead?" To meet the most pressing necessity, and to gain time for solving the perplexing problem, two new cemeteries were opened outside of Paris within the last two years, at Ivry and Saint-Ouen. But not having more than thirty-five acres each in extent, they could afford only temporary relief. Paris needs 425 acres to dispose of its dead for the period of seven years, and there is scarcely one-fourth of that space left in all the burial grounds taken together.

It was formerly the custom to bury in the common ditch all persons too poor to buy or to lease a plot of ground. Seven coffins used to be placed one above the other in each trench, next to another filled in the same way. An ordinance made in 1853 put a stop to that practice, and granted to every person, rich or poor, a separate and distinct resting-place. The space allotted to free graves was thus more speedily exhausted. In order to remove a recurrence of the pesent difficulty, in order, at least, to guard against it for several hundred years, a burial ground is required of not less than two thousand acres.

The plan adopted by the Municipal Council is calculated to secure this. The idea originated with M. HAUSSMANN. This able and energetic Prefect of the Empire had included in his extensive administrative schemes the creation of a vast cemetery, worthy of the French metropolis. But he was met with one of those uncompromising oppositions too often witnessed in French assemblies and councils. In spite of it he persisted; he set his officials at work, and, thanks to his untiring and farsighted efforts, Paris is to-day in possession of two-thirds of the land needed for the object.

The selection of the site, in the Commune of Méry-sur-Oise, is probably the best that could be made. It is about twenty miles north of Paris, and will be reached within an hour by a railway which is to be built for the exclusive use of funeral trains. The composition of the soil is mainly siliceous, and therefore the most useful as an absorbent. The lands are desert, and consequently can best be spared in an economical point of view. They are hilly, covered with timber, and will afford plenty of resources for ornamental designs, while they have every advantage necessary for picturesque adornment.

THE SCHOOL ELECTIONS IN NEW-HAVEN.

NEW-HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 21.—There was a great deal of excitement in this city to-day over the election of three members of the Board of Education and other minor officers, owing to the fact that a prominent Roman Catholic clergyman had announced from his pulpit that it was time for the Roman Catholics to act and get control of the board, so that their schools might be supported by public funds. A Catholic ticket was in the field. Two members of the present board are of that religious belief. The excitement called out a vote of over 5,000, which was unprecedented in the history of New-Haven school elections. About 1,400 votes were cast for the Catholic candidates, but they were defeated, and the regular nominees were elected by a majority of about 1,500, the cumulative system being used. Many Roman Catholics condemned the strong sectarian animus of the others, and refused to vote the Catholic ticket.

THE TRANSIT OF VENUS EXPEDITION.

From Our Own Correspondent.

CAPE TOWN, S. A., Friday, Aug. 14, 1874.

On Thursday evening, Aug. 13, his Excellency, Sir Henry Barkly, Governor of Cape Colony, South Africa, gave a dinner at Cape Town to Capt. Chandler, commanding the United States steamer Swatara, and to the chiefs of the scientific parties which that vessel is now taking out to observe the transit of Venus in the Southern Hemisphere. At the dinner these gentlemen met the members of the English transit of Venus party, which goes to Kenguelen Island, of which Rev. Stephen Perry is chief; Mr. E. J. Stone, Astronomer Royal at the Cape; Sir Thomas Maclear, formerly in charge of the observatory there; and other distinguished savants. The Lieutenant Governor, and nearly all the high officials of the colony were present. At the close of the dinner the Governor made a brief speech expressing his high appreciation of the importance of the mission of the transit of Venus parties, and his hope that no contest more bitter than the peaceful rivalry of science would ever again rise between England and America. He concluded by proposing the health of the President of the United States, which was drunk standing, with the accompaniment of three cheers. Capt. Chandler replied briefly, and proposed in return the health of the Queen of England, which was drunk in the same manner. These were the only toasts of the evening.

At the dinner no ladies were present, but after it was over there was a reception in which they played a conspicuous part. Lady Barkly was of course the central figure, but she was surrounded by all the beauty and fashion of the city, who seemed to vie with each other in making the occasion as agreeable as possible to the strangers who were their guests. As Sir Henry and Lady Barkly are in deep mourning, there was no dancing, but several of the ladies and gentlemen present were kind enough to favor the company with excellent vocal and instrumental music, which, together with conversation, made the evening so enjoyable that all were sorry when the hour for departure arrived

On the evening previous Capt. W. W. Edgecomb, United States Consul at Cape Town, also gave a dinner to Capt. R. Chandler and to the chiefs of the scientific parties. The dinner was entirely a private one, and was altogether very enjoyable.

OBITUARY.

VICTOR SEJOUR, DRAMATIST.

A cable dispatch from Paris this morning conveys intelligence of the death of M. Victor Séjour, the French dramatic author. He was born in Paris towards the end of the year 1816, and published his first effort in literature in 1841, an ode on the "Return of Napoleon." Three years later he began his career as a dramatic writer, treating with much success subjects admitting of spectacular display and pomp. He was the author of the following dramas: "Diégarias," a play in five acts, in verse, produced at the Theatre Français in 1844; "La Chute de Séjan," five acts, in verse, 1849; "Richard III.," five acts, in prose, written for the actor Ligier, and produced at the Porte-Saint-Martin in 1852; "L'Argent du Diable," in three acts, produced at the Variétés in 1854; "Les Noces Vénitiennes," in five acts, also written for M. Ligier, and played at the Porte-Saint-Martin, in 1855; "Le Fils de la Nuit," in five acts, played at the same theatre in 1857; "André Gérard," a play in five acts, written for the last performances of M. Frédéric Lemaitre, and produced at the Odéon in 1857; "Le Martyre du Cœur," in five acts, produced at the Ambigu in 1858, with M. J. Brésil; "Les Grands Vassaux," played at the Odéon in 1859; "Le Paletot Brun," a vaudeville; "La Tireuse de Cartes," played at the Porte-Saint-Martin in 1859; "Le Compère Guillery," produced at the Ambigu in 1860; "Les Massacres de Syrie," played at the Cirque in December, 1860; "Les Mystères du Temple," played at the Ambigu in 1861; "Les Volontaires de 1814," played at the Porte-Saint-Martin in 1861; "Les Fils de Charles-Quint," founded on new historical documents relating to Philip II., and produced at the Ambigu in 1864; "Le Marquis Caporal," played at the Gaité in 1864; "Les Enfants de la Louve," in five acts, with M. Theodore Barrière, played at the Gaité in 1865; "La Madone des Roses," a fairy spectacle produced at the same theatre in 1868, and several other plays of less pretension. Owing to the confounding of names M. Séjour was, during his life time, the subject of several obituary sketches in the journals outside of France. He was made a chevalier of the Legion of Honor in 1860.

THE TRANSPORTATION OF SHAD.

In your issue of the 16th inst. you published a note from G. H. C. S. recommending persons interested in fish culture to visit China and take lessons from the "heathen," and stating that he had "seen myriads of young fish en route on the Yang-tse-kiang to the most extreme portion of that vast Empire."

But were they shad? We can take young trout and salmon around the world; cat-fish can be taken in a wet blanket anywhere; the carp, which seems to be a favorite Chinese fish, is remarkably hardy; we have only one variety of this family in America, the gold-fish, and we see how it lives and thrives under all sorts of abuse.

The shad sent by the United States Fish Commission were hatched the day before starting, and never had food. Other fish we can feed, but the young shad seem to live on the microscopic animal life contained in water which we cannot get at sea. The North German Lloyd Steam-ship Company gave us everything in their power; furnished plenty of good Croton water, which was of necessity, put in tanks, where, if it had once contained infusoria, would not keep them long in the dark. This trial, although not successful, is not without its good results in an increased knowledge that will be available another season, and, taken in connection with the experiments instituted by Prof. Baird, will enable the next expedition to start with an assurance of success which was not granted to those in charge of this one.

This "Chinese question" is one that is continually coming up in fish culture, and one that I have for the past six years, during which I have been engaged in this business, tried to corner down into a hard-pan of facts, but have never been able to find anything but a vague assertion that the Celestials were superior to us in the art of fish-breeding, and that it must of necessity be so, because they have practiced it for centuries. We want to know their exact points of superiority in order that we may in time work up to it; but I for one am not willing to concede it without better proof than a general assertion of travelers who are not well posted in what has been done in their own country, and who do not seem to realize that while one fish will live under almost any circumstances another will not live with the best of care. I do not believe that an adult shad can be transported alive ten miles, nor even kept alive a day in a pen or car in his own river; neither will I believe that the Chinese are better fishculturists than the Americans until something more than a general assertion appears to prove it. A few months ago it was told in many papers that the Celestials took fish spawn, put it in an egg-shell, and set it under a hen.

This suggests the assertion of Glendower: "I can call spirits from the vasty deep," and the skeptical query of the unbelieving Hotspur, "Why, so can I; but will they come?"

The young shad could probably be taken up their own rivers in cans, and kept for months by supplying them with water containing their natural food, but crossing the ocean is an entirely different matter from going up the Yang-tse-Kiang.

I hope that your correspondent will be able to give us some facts regarding the Chinese methods, of which we have as yet had only misty assertions and absurd stories.

AMUSEMENTS.

DRAMATIC.

"THE SPHINX" AT THE UNION SQUARE.

M. Octave Feuillet's drama, "The Sphinx," as adapted to the American stage by Mr. George Fawcett Rowe, was represented for the first time in America at the Union Square last evening. It is a sombre paly, the story of which is developed with sufficient skill to make the spectator desire to hear its end; it is, however, devoid of what Mr. Daly's programmes would call human interest, and, although there was much applause during the performance, we do not augur, on this account, that its career will be of exceptional duration. The principal personage in "The Sphinx" is Blanche, the wife of an absent naval officer. Blanche dwells at the château of her husband's father, Admiral De Chelles, and leads a life in which she studiously sets all the proprieties at defiance. She has, happily, for a good genius, Berthe, once her school-fellow, the wife of Henri de Savigny, a gentleman formerly in the navy, who occupies a château in the neighborhood. Now, although Berthe is an exceedingly good companion for Blanche, it is questionable whether Blanche is an equally advantageous associate for Berthe, and Savigny, to break off the connection between the ladies, insists that his wife shall go with him to Nice, there to pass the Winter. Berthe herself is charged with revealing her husband's intention to Blanche, and angered at the prospect of losing her best friend, Blanche at once determines upon attacking Savigny. An interview with Berthe's husband follows. Savigny explains to her that, while he despises a coquette, he can feel commiseration for a woman who is the victim of a real passion, illicit though it be. Hereupon, Blanche boldly asserts that she is in the position he describes, and to prove the truth of this assertion hands over to him a packet of letters which she has written, but which have never been sent to the person to whom they are addressed. This person is Savigny himself, as he discovers to his utter amazement, on reading the first letter in the packet. It now happens that Savigny comes under the influence of the spell which Blanche exerts upon all who come within her reach. Berthe is observant and her jealousy is speedily awakened. Among the guests at the château is one Lord Dornoch, a professed libertine. Lord Dornoch has laid deliberate siege to Blanche's heart, and has even proposed an elopement. Blanche, noticing the growing jealousy of Berthe, determines to cure her by forcing her to assist at a rendezvous between Lord Dornoch and herself, in which she will consent to fly with him that very night. The meeting takes place. A complete revulsion ensues in the feelings of Berthe. Her jealousy is gone; her only desire now is to save her friend from ruin, and she implores her husband to hasten to the spot in the adjoining wood where Blanche has appointed to meet Lord Dornoch, and to prevent her flight. At this point of the story the action really begins. Savigny and Blanche are face to face in the forest, where Blanche was to have joined Lord Dornoch. The maddened woman denies Savigny's right to intercept her passage. Savigny declares that he is master of the property on which she stands, and that he will sooner fling her into the neighboring pond than allow her to join Lord Dornoch. His violence convinces her that a sense of honor is not his only motive, and she joyfully proclaims her discovery that her love for him is returned. He does not contradict the assertion, and poor Berthe, who has come to the spot just in time to hear too much, faints through sheer despair. In the last act, Berthe regards Blanche simply as an enemy, and, having become possessed of the compromising letters, plainly tells her that if she does not take her departure at once, she will show these to the Admiral. Blanche in her difficulty drops the contents of her ring into a glass of water, with the intention apparently of poisoning her rival. But a minute's hesitation convinces her of the enormity of the crime she would commit, and she swallows the poison herself, and dies in Berthe's presence. Thus commences, proceeds, and closes this gloomy romance. In Paris its success grew out of the very realistic portrayal by Mlle. Croizette of the agonies of death from the effects of strychnine. In London, neither the French drama nor an English translation kept public attention longer than a few evenings. Whether "The Sphinx" will prove more attractive in this country remains to be seen. As mentioned already, its first recital was interrupted by great applause, but the encouragement attendant upon a first representation is not a certain harbinger of the sentiment of play-goers in general. Yet there was much in yesterday's performance that deserved even the ultra-hearty evidences of approval now and then bestowed. Some exceedingly good acting was enjoyed, and some admirable scenery shown. Miss Morris personates Blanche with her wonted power no less than with her wonted eccentricity. But this eccentricity jars upon one less in "The Sphinx" than in many pieces she has figured in, for Blanche is restless, feverish, and irrational enough to merit the name fastened upon her by M. Feuillet, and Miss Morris' hurried declamation and strange intonations and abrupt transitions are almost in keeping with the part, while her genuine force has full scope for display in the scene with Savigny in the first act, in that with Berthe, after making the appointment with Lord Dornoch, in the second, and in the highly dramatic events of act the third. Miss Charlotte Thompson fills with care the rôle of Berthe, but except in the last act, when she acquaints Blanche with the fact that she holds her letters, the effort was one that spoke too little of nature and too much of art. All the male artists of the Union Square, save Mr. Parselle, whose Admiral De Chelles is full of dignity, and Mr. Mackay, whose "Ulric, pianist and composer," is neither a Frenchman nor a German, are, to use Shakespeare's word too robustious. Ever since "The Wicked World," was given at this house, all the actors have emulated the roaring of the two mortals transferred to paradise. A few recitals will surely bring about many changes in the representation, and we trust Mr. McKee Rankin will modify such of his views of the character of Savigny as prompt him, at present, to what we may mildly term an excess of zeal. Mr. Frederic Robinson's rather embarrassing rôle will probably sit more lightly upon him, also, in a not distant future. Of course, the "sensation" in "The Sphinx" is reserved for the final tableau, in which Blanche swallows poison and succumbs to its potency. The spectacle Miss Morris, offers with eyes upturned, pallid face, foaming mouth, and hands clutching at her bosom—the waist of her dress being torn open in the agony of the moment—is simply disgusting, and not impressive. It is just possible that thousands of persons will flock to the Union Square Theatre to behold this achievement, only physicians being privileged to look upon the sad reality. We should like, however, if "The Sphinx" has a protracted run, to think that its popularity was secured by other causes; by clever acting, and by the sumptuous scenery with which Mr. Marston has illustrated it. We shall, of course, have to turn to the subject again, for last night it was nearly midnight when the curtain fell.

BOOTH'S THEATRE.

Mr. and Mrs. Barney Williams opened their engagement last evening at Booth's after a five years' absence from this City. The house was filled, and the welcome which they received passed beyond the limits of mere cordiality, and even bordered on the enthusiastic. "Connie Soogah; or, The Jolly Peddler," the drama in which they made their appearance, is essentially of the Irish type, and as is known, claims the authorship of Mr. Charles Gayler. The difference between it and all other Irish dramas having something of a sensational element is no greater than that which is illustrated by the distinction between "tweedle-dum" and "tweedle-dee." Perhaps it bears a stronger resemblance to Falconer's "Eileen Oge" than to any other of the class, for its hero-lover is in pretty much the same predicament as in that play, and the general circumstances run in a kindred groove. Like almost all Irish dramas, it is made the medium of introducing a gentlemanly refugee, a sharp-witted peasant who clings to him through every chance and peril, a buxom Irish girl of ready brains and great animal spirits, abundant flourishing of shillelahs, a sensation scene of a good deal of interest, and several discomfited villains, who rightly come by their deserts. The one particular feature in which Mr. Gayler's drama differs from those of Falconer and Boucicault is in the introduction of a crazed woman, who is at once the wife and the Nemesis of the chief villain of the piece. She is partly like Blanche of Devon, and partly like one of the hags of "Macbeth." She is introduced at the end of the second, and is on the stage through the greater portion of the third or last act, and, although quite a repulsive character, the part is played by Miss Mary Wells with such dramatic force as to be exceedingly interesting. There is one remarkable incongruity in this drama, which every traveler in Ireland will readily understand, and Mr. Barney Williams, who, in a little speech delivered at the end of the second act, said he had been through every inch of that country, should therefore recognize it the more readily. The incongruity we allude to is this, that the peasantry who are supposed to live in the extreme north of Ireland, and who appear on the stage with a view, of the Giants' Causeway, (County Antrim) at their backs, speak with an accent which might pass for that of the south, or the west, or a portion of the eastern province of Ireland, but which is entirely removed from the sharp, metallic, almost Scotch accent of the north. This error was also observable in the case of the Irish characters which Mr. Boucicault introduced into his drama, "Belle Lamar." The matter, however, is not of much importance where nothing is particularly important, and if Killarney and the County Wicklow and such localities have grown a little stale for stage purposes, perhaps it will do as well to transfer the recognizable stage Irishman up to the north of the island where he has no existence. For the acting of this piece, it is remarkably good. Mr. Barney Williams as Corney McGrath is a ready-witted, jovial, humorous, and ubiquitous fellow, who is always marring the plots against the hero of the drama, Lacy O'Connor, (Mr. Frederick B. Warde,) who, by the way, has less to do than heroes usually have in these dramas. Mrs. Williams is pretty much the alter ego of Mrs. Florence in "Eileen Oge," and there is otherwise a fair distribution of characters, Miss Mary Wells, Miss Helen Tracy, Mr. J. E. Irving, Mr. Charles Le Clercq, and Mr. Charles Rockwell gaining the principal honors. The drama is very well put upon the stage in the matter of scenery, and the sensation scene is especially well contrived.

THE FALL RIVER FIRE.

CORONER'S INQUEST — TESTIMONY TAKEN YESTERDAY — TWO MORE UNRECOGNIZABLE BODIES.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Sept. 21.—The Coroner's jury for the investigation of the Granite Mill disaster met at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in the large committee room in the City Hall. Several witnesses were examined, the principal one being James E. McCreery, the Superintendent of the mills, whose testimony was substantially the same as previously reported, nothing new being elicited. At 6 o'clock a recess was taken until 7:30 o'clock.

At the evening session there were about a dozen witnesses present. Each one was examined at length, but their testimony was, in substance, only a repetition of the statements already published.

Samuel J. Young, the colored boy whose duty it was to clean the mule heads, testified that he saw Dennis Leary oil the mule where the fire is reported to have originated; also saw him throw water on the fire, which he got from a sink two-thirds the way down the room from the fire.

Alfred Buckley, Second Overseer of the spooling-rooms, was examined. His testimony was a description of what was done there after finding the exit by the stairway cut off, and he added that, had any one come into the room, as the Superintendent claims to have done, they must have heard the screams of the girls, who did not cease for a moment calling his (Buckley's) name for him to save them.

Joseph Wood, Second Overseer of the mule room, who made his escape from the fifth story by means of the fire-escape, also testified that he heard the girls in the sixth story screaming. Did not hear the Superintendent or any one else in the fifth story call for help to escape, and did not see the Superintendant at all.

Mr. Shove, the Treasurer of the mill, was present at both sessions of the jury, but had not been called to testify up to the hour of adjournment, 10:10 P. M. The jury meet at 9:15 A. M. to-morrow.

Two more charred, blackened, and unrecognizable bodies were found in the lower mule-room, at the north end of the mill, to-day.

SOUTH AND CENTRAL AMERICA.

COLUMBIA.

The news from all quarters of the Republic is of a general tranquillity, the principal movements being on the subject of railroads and popular instruction. In the harbor of Panama are anchored her Majesty's ship Reindeer and the United States flag-ship Richmond. Capt. George O. Baker, of the whaling-ship Cape Horn Pigeon, reports the ship full with 1,300 barrels of whale-oil. David Corwine, Esq., general agent of the Panama Railroad and the Pacific Mail Company, takes passage in the Acapulco on a short visit to New-York.

CHILI.

Under a concession from the Chilian Government, the Transandine Telegraph Company will enjoy an additional subsidy of $7,000 annually from the day communication is established with Europe.

The British bark Iona, from Montevideo, arrived on the 11th instant, having on board fifteen of the crew of the British bark Lady Heathcote, which vessel was burned at sea on the 23d ultimo, in latitude 58° 16' South, and longitude 68° West. The Lady Heathcote was bound from Cardiff to Caldera with a cargo of coal.

THE ARGENTINE REPUBLIC.

A person supposed to be King Orelie has been captured among the Indians at Patagones and is now in custody at Buenos Ayres. The prisoner denies that he is the pretender and says that his name is Juan Duprat.

It is reported that 100,000 head of cattle have perished from the effects of drought in the two districts alone of San Pedro and Baradero.

PERU.

The latest news from this Republic has been anticipated. There has been no steamer from the South since the Oroyo arrived.

GUATEMALA.

On the 4th inst., as reported by British steamer Tenedos, which arrived at Panama on the 12th inst., the Guatemala Government saluted the English flag with due solemnity, and a full indemnity was paid to Mr. Magee.

The flag-ship Repulse, with Admiral Cochrane, left for Acapulco on the 5th inst. The Petrel has gone North, and the Fantome is on her way to Panama. Everything, on the whole, passed off pleasantly.

By decree of the 13th August the Government, in answer to the invitation made to it by the Government of the United States, has decided to "assist" at the celebration of the United States Centenary at Philadelphia, to take place on the 4th of July, 1876, and has named Don Vincente Dardon, Minister of the Republic at Washington, to confer on the subject with the United States Centenary Commission.

RIOT AT ASPINWALL.

ASPINWALL, Sept. 12.—A serious riot attended with bloodshed took place here this afternoon about 4:30 P. M. between the Italians in the employ of the Pacific Mail Steam-ship Company and the troops on duty here. It appears that one of the soldiers unarmed was on the wharf; and was chased off by some of the Italians, who threw stones at him. On arriving at his quarters he reported the case, when an officer and six men went at once to the wharf to arrest those who had made the assault. On reaching the gate, one of the Italians fired two pistol-shots at the troops without result, when a volley was fired in return, which mortally wounded one of the Italians and seriously wounded a Jamaica negro, whose leg will have to be amputated. The excitement is intense, and additional troops have been sent for to keep the peace. California passengers who arrived just after the occurrence were placed safely on board the steamer Acapulco.

That no more were hurt is wonderful, as the volley was fired just outside the gate, and directly up the wharf. Mr. Corwine, General Agent, Commodore Gray, and Superintendent Thomson were just outside the line of fire, and the wharf was filled with laborers. Matters are quiet now.

THE HOSTILE SAVAGES.

THE ATTACK ON COL. MILES' SUPPLY TRAIN.

A THREE-DAYS' FIGHT—THE INDIANS REPULSED—BRAVE DEFENSE OF A PARTY OF SIX COURIERS—THEY FIGHT INDIANS ALL DAY AND REPULSE THEM.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 21.—Special dispatches were sent out from Quincy, Ill., last night, concerning alleged Indian depredations near Camp Supply, and declaring that Col. Miles had been compelled to fall back to meet his supplies; that he had telegraphed Gen. Pope for reinforcements; that one large supply train of thirty-six wagons had been captured, the Assistant Wagonmaster killed, and the men compelled to abandon the train after a desperate resistance, bringing twenty-seven wounded into camp; that 300 stand of arms, together with a large amount of ammunition and commissary stores, had fallen into the hands of the savages; that the Eighth Cavalry had come in from Arizona entirely destitute, having lost all their supply and baggage trains, and joined Col. Miles' command. On inquiry at head-quarters the story proves to be untrue, or so slightly founded as to be virtually a hoax. From official dispatches received by Lieut. Gen. Sheridan the real facts are obtained for the Associated Press. Col. Miles, in a dispatch dated on the 5th inst., seventy-five miles south of Red River, advised Gen. Pope that he should fall back for supplies. His dispatch, received by Gen. Sheridan to-day, is dated from his camp on the Wachita River, Sept. 14, and came via Fort Dodge, leaving there on the 17th. He says: "I find that after leaving the Canadian River, Major Lyman, commanding the escort to the supply train, was attacked by from 300 to 400 Indians on the morning of the 9th inst. The Indians charged the train several times, and made every effort to capture it, fighting so determinedly as to detain it for three days. The fight was very close, and the train was completely surrounded. On the third day the Indians abandoned the attack, retreating south-west. From all the information I can get here since my arrival, I believe they formed no part of the body we drove off the Staked Plains and they were believed to have been led off by Satanta and Big Tree. During the fight Lieut. Lewis, Fifth Infantry, was severely wounded in the knee; Sergt. Dearmon, Co. I, Fifth Infantry, was killed; Sergt. Single, Sixth Cavalry, Private Buck Fifth Infantry, and Wagon-master Sandford were wounded, the latter mortally. The officers estimate the number of Indians killed at fifteen and the wounded many more. Private Pettijohn, of the Sixth Cavalry, was killed near the camp on McClellan Creek on the 11th. Lieut. Baldwin will have informed you of his successful encounter with Indians while coming in as bearer of dispatches. A part of the foe that attacked Major Lyman attacked a party of six bearing dispatches, who entrenched themselves in the sand, and after a desperate fight all day, in which one courier was killed and four wounded, they compelled the Indians to retire, having killed twelve. Whenever we have fought them they have been severely punished, with comparatively slight loss on our side. The rivers to the south are now so swollen as to be impassable for wagons. I am building a bridge across the Wachita. The cavalry were obliged to swim their horses on returning. The march back was more exhausting than the advance, even with the Indians in our front, owing to the terrible and continuous rains which flooded the streams and made the roads almost impassable, from which facts, as well as because but half rations of forage were furnished, and the Indians had destroyed much of the grass, the animals have come in exhausted and somewhat worn down. This command now occupies the valleys of McClellan Creek, Sweet Water, and the Wachita.

Major Price's command is camped near us, acting independently."

Gen. Pope, in a communication inclosing Col. Miles' report, says that Col. Miles has force enough to beat any force that can be met.

OPERATIONS IN THE SOUTH-WEST AGAINST THE SAVAGES.

TOPEKA, Kan., Sept. 21.—Information from the scene of operations against the Indians in the South-west is to the effect that a train of supplies corraled by Indians on the Wachita was released by a force from Camp Supply on the 14th inst., and, in continuing the journey south, was met by Gen. Miles' command, which went into camp about fifteen miles south of the Columbian River. The Indians are moving south, and apparently trying to avoid a general engagement.

DESTITUTION IN BROOKLYN.

A man named Henry Totche was sent to jail yesterday morning, for ten days, by Justice Semler, on a charge of stealing a few potatoes. The wife of the unfortunate man went to the office of Charity Commissioner Wheeler at noon, and stated that the potatoes were taken by her husband as a meal for herself and her four children. He had been out of work for many weeks, and they were entirely destitute, having disposed of every piece of furniture and article that could be turned into money to save the family from starvation. This misery pressed so upon her husband that he was glad to pick up anything lying about the streets, in the shape of food, and these potatoes coming in his way, he took them. The wife begged Commissioner Wheeler to give her some temporary relief, but this was not in his power to do. He then suggested that she had better go to the Almshouse with her little ones until such time as her husband had served the ten days in jail, when an effort would probably be made to procure him work. The man is a pie-baker by trade.

The prisoners were taken charge of by Inspector Speight and Capt. Irving, and on their handcuffs being removed were placed in the strong cells. They will be taken to the Albany Penitentiary to-day.

THE KANSAS SUFFERERS.

Gov. Osborn, in his message to the Legislature of Kansas upon its assembling at his call in extra session, says that an extensive correspondence has been carried on with the people, especially in the western counties, and every effort made by the Executive Office, as well as by the officers of the State Board of Agriculture, to obtain reliable statistics in regard to the condition of the people. The result of this inquiry shows that while Kansas, as a State, has an abundance of breadstuffs, much more than is needed to feed all her people, that that portion of the State which has been almost entirely populated during the last eighteen months will suffer for the want of the necessaries of life, unless provision is made for its relief. The counties most seriously affected, and for which the needed relief cannot be afforded by the local authorities, are Norton, Rooks, Ellis, Russell, Osborne, Phillips, Smith, McPherson, Rice, Barton, Reno, Barbour, Edwards, and Pawnee; while the counties of Harvey, Jewell, Ellsworth, Sedgwick, Sumner, and possibly some others, may require more or less assistance. Of these the greatest destitution seems to prevail in the extreme north-west, embracing Norton, Phillips, Rooks, Osborne and Smith Counties, and the unorganized counties lying west, where immediate aid seems necessary. The number of persons who will require more or less aid, as estimated on the reports received, will not, it is thought, exceed $15,000, and many of these will require but little assistance. The greatest want seems to be for small grain, whereby these destitute people can subsist until another crop can be raised. It is believed that there is sufficient meat in the counties named to supply the demand of consumption. In conclusion, the Governor says: "The wishes of the people, so far as I have been informed, are entirely in favor of providing for the present emergency, and for doing it at home. The day has gone by when we need look to others for assistance. The people also demand that there be no extravagance, no waste, and no unfaithful use of public power or public treasure. If you adhere to their wishes you will gain the approval not only of your constituents, but the people of the whole nation will point to Kansas with pride as the State that is first in peace as well as in war, the State that never forgets the cry of the suffering and the destitute, and the State that steadily marches forward, made stronger by every adversity and more powerful by relying solely upon herself."

GEN. GARFIELD'S DISTRICT.

From an Occasional Correspondent.

PAINESVILLE, Ohio, Tuesday, Sept. 15, 1874.

The contest between Gen. Garfield and his opponents in this, the Nineteenth, Congressional district is becoming somewhat animated, and before long the political cauldron will probably manifest considerable commotion. The district is composed of five counties, viz.: Lake, Ashtabula, Geauga, Portage, and Trumbull. When the primary meetings were held to elect delegates to the regular Republican District Convention, Portage—the home of Mr. Garfield—Lake, and Geauga Counties gave the Garfield delegates a vote of three or four to one. In fact, some townships only cast half a dozen votes against Mr. Garfield. In Ashtabula and Trumbull Counties the vote, although closer than in the balance of the district, was still overwhelmingly in support of Gen. Garfield. In the convention the thirty-four anti-Garfield delegates who had secured an election cast blank ballots, it being obvious that no other candidate had a shadow of a chance for the nomination.

Since the Convention, an effort has been made to fuse the entire opposition vote—Anti-Garfield Republicans, Liberals and Democrats—into one solid mass, of which the cohesive element should be opposition to the regular Republican candidate. Now the Liberals of this portion of the State are ready to strike hands with any party or any faction that is desperate enough, or condescending enough to coalesce with them. Indeed, the Ohio Liberal is one of the most deplorable objects, so far as politics and political influence are concerned, that has ever maintained a foothold in the Republic. Having in a moment of insanity cut loose from the Republican party, the rebuke which they received at the close of the Greeley campaign left them exceedingly sore and discouraged, and being too proud to come back, like the Prodigal Son, to their political home, they persist in wandering about in the cold, feeding on the poorest of husks, and becoming every day more deluded. It was, therefore, an easy task for the opponents of Gen. Garfield to bring the Liberals under their standard; but the Democrats proved more difficult to manage. They have had some experience with the Liberals as bedfellows, and are shy of repeating the experiment.

The Democracy called their regular convention to meet at Warren on the 10th inst. The Liberals accordingly called their hosts to assemble in mass-convention at the same place and on the same day, hoping that a proper amount of attention and a sufficient number of invitations to "smile" would secure the Democratic consent to the proposed alliance. But the Democracy were not to be caught. They accepted all invitations to drink, and chuckled audibly among themselves, while they firmly refused to yield to the seductive influences of the Liberal chiefs. Accordingly the opponents of Mr. Garfield were compelled to hold their convention by themselves, and make a separate nomination. The citizens of Warren good-naturedly gave them an audience, but only twenty or thirty persons altogether were found to participate in the proceedings of the convention. Probate Judge Tuttle, of Lake, and a very lion among the anti-Garfield men of this county, was called to the chair, while Messrs. Burrows, Murray, and other Liberals made themselves conspicuous as leaders in the new movement. It was deemed desirable that the nominee of the convention should be a man without any political record. In fact, if they could have found a man without any record upon anything it would have pleased them very much. Personal records are exceedingly vulnerable, and there isn't a man in Ohio and especially among the members of that convention, who can have every act of his life held up to the public gaze, and be hauled around and literally dissected after the manner of political campaigns nowadays without wishing he had never been born. The assembled wisdom of the Warren Convention pointed to Rev. R. H. Hurlbut, a Methodist preacher, and until recently a Presiding Elder in that denomination, who happened (?) to be present, as the man for their purposes, one in whom there was no guile, and who would not be likely to have a very troublesome record. Accordingly the reverend gentleman was persuaded to lay aside the banner of the cross and hoist in its stead the standard of opposition to Gen. Garfield. The spirit of self-sacrifice exhibited by Mr. Hurlbut in acceding to their wishes is touching to observe, but the sacrifice was made; a ratification-meeting was called upon the spot, several speeches were indulged in, and the members of the convention finally separated with mutual pledges of devotion to the cause.

Since then five days have elapsed, and yet business does not seem to be very much distracted, and no remarkable degree of enthusiasm has been engendered in behalf of the ministerial candidate. But a prominent Liberal was overheard to say last evening that "it will be hot in a week," and it was upon this authority that your correspondent made the prediction with which this letter was commenced.

Meantime, meddlesome persons have been overhauling portions of the new candidate's history, and it is asserted that he actually has a record, and that some portions of it are likely to make some trouble for his supporters, and require some explanation on their part. Mr. Hurlbut is a member of the Erie Conference, and at the session of the conference just closed he was relieved from the active duty of a Presiding Elder and given a small charge at Wickliffe, where he would not have much to do. This was done on the plea of ill-health. The query arises whether the duties of a Congressman will be much lighter than those of a Methodist Presiding Elder. His friends of the same denomination are about to call on Mr. Hurlbut in the shape of a committee, and ask to be enlightened concerning these matters. So says rumor, and rumor is probably right this time.

ALMOST A KING.

There died in Allegheny, Penn., last Friday, an old man, who, the Pittsburg Commercial says, had at one time, according to his own account and the facts that can be ascertained concerning his history, strong aspirations to a throne in Europe. His name was John William Leskar, and his age sixty-seven years. He had been in this country fourteen years, and in Allegheny thirteen years. He came from Saxony, where, according to accounts, he was a man of great wealth and high position. A revolutionary movement was started, and Leskar placed himself at the head of it. Had the movement succeeded, he was to have been placed on the Saxon throne. The revolution was a failure, and the throne did without Leskar. Worse than that, his estate was confiscated, and he became an exile. He came to this country, and accepted the exciting career of barber in Allegheny City. A day or two since he became ill, and he died in such poverty that the authorities will have to bury him. Leskar has a brother and a son now in Saxony. The brother is a man of great wealth, and the son, it is said, is attached to the Court of the present ruler. It is stated that the influence of friends could have saved Leskar from exile, and his property from confiscation, but he would not permit such influence to be used. Neither would he in later years permit his brother or his son to do anything in his behalf.

THE TURF.

TROTTING AT FLEETWOOD PARK.

GLOSTER THE WINNER OF THE GREAT RACE —THE SECOND RACE WON BY G. B. DANIELS—PROSPECT PARK MEETING.

Yesterday the great $10,000 purse offered by the Fleetwood Park Association for the leading flyers of the trotting turf was contested before an immense throng of spectators, estimated at over ten thousand persons. Notwithstanding the heavy rains of the past week the track was in fair condition, and the race was exciting throughout. The entries for the purse were Budd Doble's b. g. Gloster, William Lovell's b. m. American Girl, O. A. Hickok's ch. g. Judge Fullerton, and A. F. Merrow's blk. g. Camors. The New-York turfmen believed that American Girl's chances were the best, and consequently backed her so strongly that she became the favorite before the start, bringing $180, Gloster $140, Judge Fullerton $140, and Camors $65.

FIRST HEAT.—When the word was given both Fullerton and Gloster left their feet and American Girl assumed the lead, followed by Camors. When going along the backstretch, Gloster settled down to his work, gained the second place, and began the chase after the Girl. The latter broke at the half-mile pole, and when they began to climb the hill on the lower turn, Gloster took the lead and won the heat easily by four lengths, in 2:20½, Camors coming in second, American Girl third, and Judge Fullerton fourth.

SECOND HEAT.—Gloster was now the favorite over the field. The start was a good one, the quartet getting away together. Both Camors and Gloster broke at the turn, and the contest was left between American Girl and Fullerton, who contested every inch of ground to the three-quarter pole, when the Girl, trotting steadily, shook off Fullerton, and left him several lengths behind on the homestretch, winning the heat very easily in 2:22¾. Camors was third and Gloster fourth.

THIRD HEAT.—Gloster was still the favorite at $180; American Girl, $100; field $65. The "go" was given to a splendid start, but Gloster broke immediately after receiving the word, and fell to the rear; the other three trotting splendidly were close together at the half-mile, but on ascending the hill Camors made a very bad break and fell back last. American Girl and Fullerton were together as they neared the three-quarter pole, and Gloster with a splendid burst of speed closed upon them with astonishing rapidity. When they turned into the homestretch the excitement was intense. Gloster with a final effort forged to the front, while Fullerton and American Girl were head and head making a brilliant struggle. Gloster finally passed under the wire, a winner of the heat by a length only, while American Girl succeeded in gaining the second place by a head from Fullerton, Camors several lengths behind. Time—2:21.

FOURTH HEAT.—Gloster was by this time an immense favorite. When they received the word, Gloster and American Girl shot away, and the other two, apparently tired, fell behind. The race was between the two former horses throughout. Every foot of the way was stubbornly contested, but Gloster outlasted the Girl, and won the heat and race by a length in 2:21. Camors was third, about fifty yards behind, and two lengths before Fullerton. Thus Gloster won first money, American Girl second, Camors third, and Fullerton fourth.

Daniels was the favorite over the field, and although he lost the second heat, by acting badly, he won the other three and the race, thus justifying the confidence of his backers.

PROSPECT PARK ASSOCIATION.

The first of the series of the Fall trotting meetings of the Prospect Park Fair Ground Association will begin to-day. The purses have closed with a larger number of entries than ever before known in this vicinity, and the prospects are that this meeting will eclipse all former efforts of the association. The second tier of the grand stand has been reserved for ladies, and a strong police force will be in attendance to preserve order.

TROTTING AT WESTCHESTER COUNTY FAIR GROUNDS.

The trotting which was to have taken place on the fair grounds of the Westchester County Agricultural and Horticultural Society, but postponed on account of the storm, came off yesterday. The first race was for the Ladies' Stake for two-year olds; $30 entrance and half forfeit; $300 added. Of the seven entries only three came to the post, viz.: Enlister, Ino, and Elmwood. Enlister was the favorite at slight odds over Ino, and won in 52 seconds, Ino second, and Elmwood third.

Carver, Larena, Stockwood, and Eclair. In the betting Lizzie Lucas was the favorite at two to one over the field, and won after a warm contest with B. F. Carver. Time—2:40.

ASSAULT ON OFFICER M'KENZIE.

Perhaps no officer at present in the Police force has been so unfortunate as Officer McKenzie, of the Thirty-second Precinct. While doing duty in the Eighteenth Precinct, he was badly cut with a knife by the notorious "Rat" Reilly, and then, in endeavoring to save a woman from being brutally assaulted in a tenement-house, was badly stabbed by a ruffian named Burke, who pleaded guilty, and was sent to State Prison. On being transferred to the Thirty-second Precinct he again met with a misfortune in the performance of his duty. While endeavoring to arrest a gang of burglars who were breaking into the residence of Mr. Woods, on Seventh avenue, near the St. Nicholas Boulevard, he was stabbed and beaten. Last night Detective Terwilliger, of the Eighth Precinct, arrested John C. Mooney, at the corner of Greene and Houston streets, on suspicion of being one of McKenzie's assailants. The prisoner, who was fully identified by Officer McKenzie, claims to be a son of Col. Mooney, of Morrisania. He will be taken to court to-day.

LOCAL POLITICAL NOTES.

An adjourned meeting of the Republicans of the Fourth Assembly District was held last evening at the rooms of the John E. Dowley Association, No. 204 East Broadway, for the purpose of further protesting against an alleged fraudulent count of the votes cast at the primary election for delegates to the Utica Convention from the regular association of the district. Mr. Hans Powell, who presided, stated the object of the gathering and called for the report of a committee appointed at a meeting held on Friday evening last. The committee presented an affidavit averring that those obnoxious to the ruling individuals of the association were not allowed to vote, and that only twenty-six votes were allowed the opposition ticket for alternates, while it was known that more than that number had voted for it. The report was received and signed by forty-five voters.

In the review of Kings County politics, published in THE TIMES on Sunday, the name of Mr. Eugene Berri was, by an oversight, omitted in mentioning the Republicans who are spoken of for the nomination in the Third Congressional District. Mr. Berri polled the largest vote cast for many years when he was elected last year from the Fifth Assembly District. He is very popular both in his ward and district, and is the unanimous choice of the Seventh Ward Republican Association. Mr. Berri, if nominated, would make a very strong candidate.

A rule which is very common throughout the State in Assembly Districts prevails in the Fifth Assembly District of Kings County. The district is composed of the Seventh and Twentieth Wards, and the candidate is selected alternately from each ward. Mr. Berri, of the Seventh Ward, represented the district last year, and this year the nomination is claimed for the Twentieth Ward. The rule already spoken of will, it is said, be adhered to at the ensuing election.

Mr. T. C. Cronin denies that he is a candidate for the office of District Attorney in Kings County on the Republican ticket this Fall. Mr. Cronin thinks that the present incumbent, Mr. John Winslow, is the strongest candidate, and will undoubtedly be elected. Mr. Winslow has many warm supporters among the Republicans, and has already given ample proof of his efficiency as a prosecuting officer.

The greater part of the Brooklyn delegation to the Republican State Convention left for Utica last evening.

THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH CONFERENCE.

Mr. Peter Cooper has placed at the disposal of the Protestant Episcopal Church Congress the large hall of the Cooper Institute for its sessions. The following is a copy of his letter:

NEW-YORK, Sept. 17, 1874.

To the Gentlemen constituting the Congress of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States:

MY CHRISTIAN FRIENDS: It is with more than ordinary pleasure that I welcome your Congress to the use of the large hall of the Cooper Union. It seems eminently proper that a congress assembled for the purpose of laying down principles for the better security of the peace of the Church, and of the world, should meet in a building devoted to union—to the union of art and science with one another, and with practical life; the union of labor with capital; of the whole people; of private rights and universal rights; in short, of the union of the people of these States in their political and social interests.

I need not say that I expect much from the wise and temperate utterances of such a body of distinguished men as are to meet in this Congress. It is the wise and the good who alone sow the seeds of thought and announce the fundamental principles that make for the permanent peace and prosperity of mankind. Among these principles there are two which seem to me to embrace all others, and have been to me a great source of strength and comfort through a long and laborious practical life. The one is written by the Apostle John: "God is Love." The second principle is given by Paul: "The invisible things of Him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made."

In the first principle, that "God is Love," we have implied all that can sustain the soul under adversity, or in the contemplation of the sins and miseries of the world. It implies that the Omniscient Father of all is 'working through all, and in all,' by a reign of universal beneficent laws, so wise and good that they will never require to be altered, amended, or revoked. They are laws

That have connected in this (our world,)
Our greatest virtue with our greatest bliss, and have made in

Our own bright prospect to be blest,
Our strongest motive to assist the rest.

In the statement of Paul I find the basis of all scientific investigation. From things visible we are taught that we can go to things "invisible;" that His eternal power and Godhead are "clearly seen and understood" by the "things that are made;" that from the world of effects we can go to the world of causes, and thence we can reach our God, Who is the infinite of all that is good. All the problems of human life can be solved by the love of God, and by a patient interrogation of that nature in which He has written, on the unfolding leaves of creation, His own eternal laws for the use and elevation of mankind.

Trusting that your deliberations will show that Christianity is the true science of life, intended to guide and regulate the action of mankind,

I remain, yours, with great respect,

PETER COOPER.

NEW-JERSEY STATE FAIR.

Yesterday was the first day since Tuesday of last week, when the weather permitted a reasonably good attendance upon the fair grounds of the New-Jersey State Agricultural Society at Waverly, N. J. As many as 10,000 people were present. The exhibition is the best presented to the public in many years. The machinery-room is replete with contributions from all the mechanical industries, and the display of agricultural implements is unusually fine, the most approved patterns of farming implements being upon the grounds. Among other machines upon the ground is one for the repairing of country roads, which is very highly commended by gentlemen versed in the improvement of roads. The society has offered premiums for the handsomest plans of dwelling-houses, costing for the construction from $1,000 to $2,500. Several handsome yet moderate plans have been submitted. In the stables there are many fine specimens of blooded horses, and the cattle pens are stocked with magnificent cattle, either imported themselves or of imported breed. The coops in the fowl department are full of every variety of the feathered species, while in the fruit-tents are monsters of vegetation of all kinds. The horse-track was in fine condition yesterday, and there were several trials of speed between private parties. Besides there were three races for premiums offered by the society, in which the spectators manifested much interest. The matches were won by Phantom, Rose, and Lutitia H. To-day Gov. Parker will review the Second Regiment, at 2 o'clock.

A BROOKLYN LAD'S MISERIES.

Superintendent Folk, of the Brooklyn Police, received the following letter yesterday morning:

BALLSTON SPA, Saratoga County, Sept. 19, 1874.

To the Chief of Police, Brooklyn, Long Island:

There is a boy kept by a woman in a backwoods place near here. The boy is about ten years old and the woman is, say, sixty years old. The boy has dark hair and eyes, a round face, and a pug nose. The boy says he used to live in Brooklyn. He is not allowed to talk as he is watched closely by the woman. This woman receives money from Brooklyn to pay their expenses. Has been in the neighborhood two or three months. Is there any boy missing from your city answering the above? If so, please inform us by the return mail. Yours truly, (Signed,) COLE & COMSTOCK.

Superintendent Folk at once investigated the matter, and caused the following reply to be transmitted:

SEPT. 21, 1874.

Messrs. Cole & Comstock:

GENTLEMEN: The records have been searched and no information is obtained from them in relation to a boy being missed from this city, nor can I give any information that would lead to the discovery of who the boy is. Thanking you for your letter, I am, &c.,

JOHN S. FOLK, Superintendent Police.

Late last night Mr. William B. Brink, of No. 206 Kent street, Greenpoint, a collector on the Greenpoint Ferry, called at the Police Central Office and informed Superintendent Folk that on the 24th of May his son, Charles Brink, aged nine years, left home to go to church and had not since returned. Mr. Brink tried every means to recover his child, but did not publish the fact of his loss for the reason that he thinks the child has been abducted by some person who is keeping it in the hope that a reward will be offered for its recovery. The description of the boy at Ballston Spa answers that of young Brink. Mr. Brink will start for Ballston this morning.

EDNA DEAN PROCTOR'S LIBEL SUIT.

Mr. Francis D. Moulton returned to Brooklyn yesterday morning, and during the forenoon presented himself at the office of United States Marshal Harlow, who was intrusted with an order of arrest issued against Moulton in the libel suit brought by Miss Edna Dean Proctor. The Marshal went with Moulton to the office of Gen. Tracy, Miss Proctor's lawyer, and, after a long consultation, Moulton's request that he be permitted to see his counsel was granted. The case will come up in the United States Court this morning before Judge Bendict, when Moulton's bail will be fixed.

COMMISSIONERS OF CHARITIES.

A CONTRADICTION AS TO THE PURCHASE OF FLOUR—NEW FACTS RELATIVE TO THE COUPE—MEYER STERN AND THE CLOTHING.

In the answer to Mr. Howe's report submitted to the Board of Aldermen on Thursday last, Messrs. Laimbeer and Stern, Commissioners of Charities and Correction, seek to evade direct responsibility for the 3,000 barrels of flour purchased from E. W. Coleman & Co., by alleging that the flour in question was purchased by the purchasing clerk. They say: "The flour was purchased by the purchasing clerk in small lots, at various dates."

Now, when Mr. Laimbeer wrote or dictated the paragraph in the report, of which the above is a copy, he must have known, unless his memory was very bad, that the Purchasing Clerk had nothing whatever to do with the transaction. He knew that 3,000 barrels of flour were purchased directly by himself without the intervention of the clerk or any of his [Mr. Laimbeer's] associates. He went himself to E. W. Coleman & Co. to negotiate the purchase, and he is doubtless aware that subsequent to his visit a correspondence passed between himself and the firm, who had some doubts as to receiving prompt payment, and that on being assured by Mr. Laimbeer that the money would be forthcoming, the flour was supplied. The correspondence here alluded to, THE TIMES is informed, is in the hands of a prominent City official, and a gentleman who saw it mentioned the matter to a reporter yesterday.

But as a further confirmation of the error fallen into by Commissioners Laimbeer and Stern in attributing the purchase to the clerk, (Mr. William P. Lampson,) the reporter was informed yesterday by Mr. Lampson, that he had not directly or indirectly, anything to say about the purchase of the flour in question. He denied in strong language the assertion made by the two Commissioners, and concluded by saying, "It is false to say I purchased that flour."

The whole truth, it appears, has not yet come out about that $1,000 coupé, used exclusively by Mr. Stern. It was supposed that this coupé was really manufactured for the Commissioners of Charities, but a TIMES reporter learned yesterday that such is not the case. It was, as he is reliably informed, manufactured for Mr. William Laimbeer before he became a Commissioner of Charities and Correction. He subsequently changed his mind and did not wish to take it, and the manufacturers refused to release him from his agreement. It remained in their establishment a short time, until Mr. Laimbeer was appointed to his present office, when the old wagon used by the department was sent to the manufacturers of the coupé, who, in consideration of the department purchasing the latter article, agreed to allow $150 for the wagon. This arrangement was carried out, and $850 were paid for the coupé, as appears by the original bill, where credit is given for the sum of $150.

Previous to the organization of the present Board of Charity Commissioners the Supply Clerk purchased all the goods required for the various institutions. When Mr. Stern came into office he proposed, it is said, that the Commissioner should divide the purchasing among themselves, and thus do away with the clerk. He (Stern) was willing to purchase the clothing, and the other two Commissioners could divide the provisions between them. This proposal was not entirely carried out, but Mr. Stern insisted that so far as the clothing was concerned, the Supply or Purchasing Clerk, as he is sometimes called, should not meddle with it. Neither did he; from June, 1873, until the 1st of January, 1874, when he was removed to make way for Moses Goodkind, a friend of Mr. Stern. Mr. Lampson did not purchase a yard of cloth. Mr. Stern through his friends and relatives attended to it. Mr. Laimbeer at first objected to Lampson's removal, as he was considered a good officer, but he wanted an appointment, it is said, for a friend to an office in the insane asylum, and Stern would not vote for Laimbeer's friend unless the latter voted for the dismissal of Lampson and the appointment of Goodkind in his place. Thus it was arranged, and Lampson was removed, contrary to Gen. Bowen's wish, and against the express desire, it is said, of Thurlow Weed.

THE INVESTIGATION BY THE GRAND JURY.

The Grand Jury were engaged yesterday in investigating the charges against the Department of Charities and Correction. Mr. Hector C. Armstrong, a son-in-law of Mayor Havemeyer, and William F. Havemeyer, Jr., were examined in relation to their respective contracts. Mr. Armstrong furnished the butter for the public institutions and Mr. Havemeyer supplied the tea, and the contracts of both these gentlemen were referred to in the report of the Commissioners of Accounts. The Grand Jury adjourned without having concluded their inquiry.

DISCUSSION ON SUNDAY-SCHOOL SESSIONS.

The second regular meeting of the Methodist Ministers' Association since the close of the Summer vacation was held yesterday in the building of the Methodist Book Concern. After opening prayer by Rev. Mr. Christopher, the Chairman, Rev. J. B. Merwin announced the subject for discussion to be, "Would not one Sunday-school session be better than two?" Rev. J. M. King, Pastor of St. John's M. E. Church, said that his response to the question was "yes," and his reason for that conclusion was based upon the fact that it was impossible to promote a thorough and systematic training in the history of the Scriptures unless the Sunday-school was closely allied to the church; one was essential to the life and existence of the other. With two sessions in the Sunday School each Sabbath, the attendence of the children at the regular church services becomes an impossibility, because they are already wearied. An impression is made upon the minds of the children by such constant attendance that the school is the church, and that when they graduate from the former they are liable to think that they may also leave the latter. Besides, two sessions absorb so much of the teachers' time that they come insufficiently prepared to teach. With one session in the Sunday-school and an attractive after-service in the church, with plain prayer and preaching that the children could well understand, the speaker felt assured that both could be inseparably wedded to the infinite profit of the Christian Church. Brother Vail gave his experience in favor of two sessions, especially in the churches of New-York and other large cities where the children for the most part live close to them. He questioned entirely the argument on the point of weariness. All children attending school were accustomed to six hours of study every day of the week, while two or three hours only were demanded in the Sunday-school sessions. Two sessions were necessary to accomplish the task of impressing upon the minds of children the full truth of the lessons. The first session should be devoted to close study, and the second to a more general explanation by the Pastor of the church. Another argument in favor of two sessions was to be found in the desire of the scholars to attend them. Dr. Curry thought single experiments in the matter did not amount to much. All the facts and circumstances governing Sunday-schools should first be considered. While answering the main question under discussion, in the negative, he believed that the Sunday-school should be regarded and governed as the agent of the church, but distinctly apart from it. Its object was to provide for the intellectual teaching of the children. The logic of the pulpit nowadays being far beyond their comprehension, and indeed that of about two-thirds of the adults, it became a necessity to place the Sunday-school apart from it, to fulfill its own special object. The question to be considered at the next meeting will be, "What can be done to make the Sunday-school more effective?" Before the adjournment of the meeting Rev. Mr. Thomas, of the Theological Seminary in India, spoke of the progress made by that institution since its establishment two years ago with a small endowment, which he, as agent, was now endeavoring to increase.

A POLICE OFFICER'S BRUTAL ASSAULT.

The case of Officer Cromie, of the Mounted Squad, who is charged with a brutal assault upon the person of Michael Hammill, of No. 261 West Thirty-third street, on the 2d inst., was called up for examination before Justice Sherwood, at the Yorkville Police Court, yesterday. Dr. Seneca D. Powell, testified that on the evening mentioned he saw Cromie standing upon the prostrate body of the complainant, who was helplessly drunk, and beating him with his club about the head and shoulders. The officer did not cease beating Hammill until he was dragged away by another Policeman. The injuries consisted of a severe scalp wound, a number of contused wounds, and a fracture of the left fore-arm. Hammill testified that on the afternoon of the 2d inst. he received his wages and drank to excess. While driving his cart up Sixth avenue he fell backward. Upon regaining his seat the officer rode up and ordered him to get out of the cart. Not complying with this demand, Cromie seized him by the collar and dragged him out, and he remembered nothing further. Dr. McClellan also testified that Hammill's arm was broken. A number of additional witnesses corroborated the evidence of the foregoing, and to enable the defense to procure the attendance of others the examination was adjourned.

A WIDOW'S WRONGS.

Margaret O'Hearn was yesterday arraigned before Justice Sherwood, at the Yorkville Police Court, charged with striking Martin O'Connell, bar-tender in the liquor store corner of Fourth avenue and Fifty-ninth street, on the head with an umbrella. The complainant alleged that the prisoner was persecuting him daily, and by following him around from place to place, had caused his discharge from two lucrative situations. Yesterday afternoon she called at the store where he is employed, and struck him, as stated. Margaret, who was sobbing violently, said that she was a widow and the mother of three children; that O'Connell had promised to marry her last June, but when the wedding day arrived he refused to become her husband, and asked that the ceremony be deferred until Nov. 1. Since that time he has persistently avoided her, and is now paying attention to another lady. Believing that he had no intention of fulfilling his promise, she visited him for the purpose of ascertaining his intentions. O'Connell ordered her out of the place, and she, exasperated beyond endurance, struck him. Upon promising Justice Sherwood to cease molesting O'Connell, she was discharged, the Judge advising her to seek legal redress for her wrongs.

LORD & TAYLOR'S OPENING.

ELEGANT DISPLAY OF NEW GOODS—HANDSOME PROMENADE, EVENING, AND BRIDAL COSTUMES—NOVELTIES IN MILLINERY.

Lord & Taylor's Fall opening commenced yesterday, and will extend over to-day and to-morrow. It was fortunate that there was such a pleasant change in the weather, as it allowed fashion to put on its best plumage and flutter its wings a little and look out for the fineries of the coming season. When Lord & Taylor announce an opening the visitation of fashionable people to their elegant reception-rooms is always on the largest scale, but on this occasion it exceeded even its usual extensive proportions. The reason of this will probably be found in the fact that the opening was a general one, not confined to one or two departments, but extending over all. Still there are two departments which must always claim pre-eminence in these displays, and these were, as is customary, the object of special attention yesterday. These are the departments devoted to dresses and millinery. The opening commenced at 8 o'clock, and from that hour until late in the day the spacious show-rooms were crowded with the fashion of the City. The dresses for the coming season, as indicated by Lord & Taylor's display, will be of remarkable elegance and of abundant variety. A description of some of the most opposite in their styles and various in their prices, will best indicate the decrees by which fashionable people are to be guided during the Fall. First we have a walking costume of moderate pretension as to price, but of remarkable beauty. It is a dress of camel's hair with silk trimmings, and side plaitings of camel's hair and silk on the underskirt. The overskirt is very long, with black silk folds and cords, and trimmed in front with black silk facings and buttons. The pannier is trimmed with black silk and camel's hair loops, and the costume is completed by a handsome jacket of the jaunty order, trimmed to correspond with the underskirt. The price of this dress is $150. The next is a plum-colored silk reception dress, the shade being particularly beautiful. The underskirt is trimmed with a flounce about a yard deep, and at the bottom of the flounce is a side-plaiting over a shirring of heavy cord. The front of the skirt has French folds with silk all the way up, and the overskirt at the back has side pieces heavily fringed extending to the bottom of the dress. The waist is trimmed with fringe, and the sleeves with reversed plaitings. The cost of the dress is $200. A costume which attracted a good deal of attention is a polonaise (imported) of materlassé cloth and trimmed with feathers, deep leaves, and passementerie ornaments. Its cost is $275. The next in order is a black silk imported from Paris. The front skirt is trimmed with reversed plaitings, and folds beaded with passementeire leaves and jet fringe, the back having a deep flounce edged with side plaiting, and puffed all the way up to the waist. It has, also, such garniture as beaded flowers, side reveres and trimmings of leaves. The waist is trimmed to correspond. The price set upon this dress is $350. Next we have a very handsome pink silk evening dress. The front of the skirt is trimmed with side plaitings of pink silk, white crape leese and reversed plaitings. At the side are white tips, white grosgrain ribbon and bows. There is a mignon overskirt, draped in the back with white ostrich feathers and bows of ribbon. At the bottom are two deep flounces, each with a side plaiting. The waist is trimmed with point appliqué lace and flowers. An elegant blue silk evening dress is in strong contrast to the above. The bottom of the underskirt has a side plaiting and one flounce of point-lace, headed with a ruching of blue silk and white tulle. There is a mignon overskirt trimmed at the back with white lace, and draped with flowers and orange blossoms. The front of the overskirt is a deep apron with a sash and five folds, having a fringe falling from the bottom, with trimmings of rose and orange blossoms. The waist is trimmed with point lace, flowers and white tulle. The cost of each of these costumes is $1,500. A very beautiful white satin bridal dress was a notable feature in yesterday's display. It is trimmed with a point lace flounce headed with fine heavy folds of satin. The overskirt is of point lace trimmed with roses. The neck is low and the sleeves, which are short, are trimmed with point lace and flowers. The cost reaches the sum of $1,700. A prune colored dress (imported) is a new shade, and exceedingly pretty. The front is trimmed with a shirred tabalier, with reveres at the side, and handsome buttons all the way up. The back of the skirt has a flounce a yard deep, trimmed with side and revere plaitings, and the overskirt is trimmed with fringe and bows. The waist is shirred, and the sleeves are ornamented with buttons up to the elbow. A standing collar is one of the features of this costume, the cost of which is $400. Among the other most admired dresses are a brown silk and cashmere, a black velvet and cashmere, a lavender evening dress, a canary-colored dress, and a very handsome imported costume of the café au lait shade. In the hat and bonnet department some very handsome head-dresses are exhibited, a good many of them coming from the Parisian houses. Mme. Virot, among other contributors, sends a very handsome hat of maroon velvet, with pink trimmings and maroon tips and black roses, with a face trimming of pink. Mme. Marie Lacloche is represented by a very handsome bonnet, with a flaring brim caught up in front with dark green velvet and white silk. At the back are white tips and a blush rose, and the face trimming is of white silk. From the establishment of Mme. Leonie Lechevalier there comes, among other specimens, a black velvet bonnet with a soft crown, trimmed with a jetted sash, and with a spray of jets across the front. At the back is a black tip, and also a black sash faced with olive. As a specimen of home design and manufacture may be taken a very handsome drab hat, caught up in front with silk, and plumes of two shades of drab. Mlle. A. Magnier contributes a very handsome head-dress of the half-bonnet pattern. It is caught up at the side and trimmed with jetted lace, with a lace jet fringe falling over the front. It is also ornamented with a jet aigrette and feathers and face trimmings of roses and silk. The prices of the home-manufactured articles range from $17 to $30, and of the imported between $35 and $50. These two departments claimed the greatest share of attention yesterday, but others were also extensively visited.

THE IRISH RIFLE TEAM AT FLEETWOOD.

The members of the Irish Rifle team and their friends yesterday accepted an invitation from the Fleetwood Park Association to witness the races at the park. At 1:15 P. M. Col. Gildersleeve, Capt. Bruce, and Lieut. Fulton, of the Amateur Rifle Club, waited upon their guests at the Windsor Hotel and escorted them in carriages to the races. The party consisted of his Honor the Lord Mayor and the Lady Mayoress, Viscount and Viscountess Masserene and Ferrard, Alderman Manning and Miss Manning, Major Arthur B. Leech, J. K. Milner, John Rigby, Capt. P. Walker, Dr. J. B. Hamilton, J. A. Doyle, John J. Kelly, E. B. B. Kelly, Thomas Kelly, the Misses Kelly, Miss Smithwick, John J. Bagnall, Mr. and Mrs. W. Waterhouse, Mrs. Col. Gildersleeve and Miss Geib, of Philadelphia. The route selected was along Fifth avenue to Central Park, and thence through Seventh avenue to the race-course, which was reached at 2:15 P. M. Accommodations had been provided for the party on the balcony of the club-house, from which an excellent view of the entire track was obtained. An immense concourse of people was present, many of whom were attracted to the spot for the purpose of seeing the distinguished guests. Very few of the party had ever witnessed a "trotting-race," consequently the utmost interest was manifested in the sport. His Honor the Lord Mayor and Viscount Masserene visited the pool-stand and purchased a pool on Camors in the champion race for a purse for $10,000, but unfortunately for the investors, Camors came in last in each heat. At the close of the third heat the party re-entered their carriages and returned to the City, through the Central Park, passing the principal monuments and the "block-house." The visitors were delighted with the beauties of the Park, and expressed their opinion of its scenery as superior to anything of the kind in the Old World. Several members of the party attended the theatre last evening. The respective teams of the Irish and Amateur Rifle Clubs will practise on the range at Creedmoor to-day. The entire party will visit Booth's Theatre to-morrow evening by invitation of the management, and the performance will be specially selected for the occasion.

BASE-BALL.

THE MUTUALS VICTORIOUS.

On the Union Grounds yesterday the Chicago and Mutual Clubs played their ninth championship game in the presence of about 1,000 spectators. Owing to the muddy condition of the grounds after the recent rains, the match was uninteresting and poorly played, a beautiful double play by Devlin and Meyerle in the first inning, and Remsen's very fine fielding being the only redeeming points in the whole contest. Hatfield was absent from the Mutuals, but his position was very creditably filled by Phelps, a new player. The Mutuals outbatted but were in turn outfielded by the White Stockings, who, considering the state of the ground, made a very fair display of fielding skill. The following is the score:

PECULIARITIES OF THE WEATHER.

Everybody who knows anything about the weather knows that it is to be judged by the rule of contraries. Accordingly, it was an interesting fact, though by no means a surprising one, that during the very pleasant weather which preceded the late storm, the weather at sea was unusually severe and disastrous. But now the case is reversed. There has been a severe storm on land but the weather at sea has been almost exceptionally pleasant. This fact was developed by a search after something very different, viz.: the particulars of the storm, which had been very severe on land and apparently much worse at sea, according to the Marine Intelligence. There it was told how the Castalia had towed into port the Florida, which had lost its rudder in a heavy E. S. E. gale; how the City of Dallas had fallen in with the Federica "dismasted and in distress," and had helped her to the Delaware Breakwater; and how the City of Waco had supplied with provisions the "dismantled" Ada B. Hall, which had lost her bowsprit and foremast below the top. Surely here were disasters enough to adorn a tale pregnant with boisterous gales and mountainous waves. But it appears that the Florida went to Providence at an early hour yesterday morning, which would seem to argue against her being badly damaged. And it was hinted at that her accident was not nearly so much due to the weather as to fright and poor seamanship. Then the Ada B. Hall lost her masts by an accident by no means attributable to the weather, and the Federica, the only vessel really injured at all by the weather, had been drifting about for nearly three weeks before she met the City of Dallas, having been dismasted during the very storm which has been chronicled as raging during the pleasant Autumn days of the week before last. Besides this, the officers of the Castalia testify that though they had some rain and a few squalls, not even a landsman could have called the weather bad. They had, indeed, seen some swell, but that was proof of a previous storm then exhausted. The officers of the Dallas testify similarly, and so do the officers of various other ships.

It will be decided to-morrow when the laborers will be set to work. A resolution was adopted directing the Captain of Police of the Fifth Precinct to prevent any grading on Fourth street, a portion of which the board had been informed was about to be graded by S. J. Hunt. The board then decided to enter into contract with John Brady for grading and paving Fourth street, between North Tenth and Orchard streets, at $12 80 per lineal foot. Clark was shot in the thumb, and went to the Fourth Precinct Station-house, where his wound was dressed. The deputy was worsted in the combat, and thereupon preferred a charge of assault and battery against Buechler. The Grand Jury of the County of Westchester call the attention of the Board of Supervisors to the importance of taking immediate action in reference to the propriety of making arrangements so that male and female prisoners can be kept entirely separate in the County Jail, and that suitable accommodations be provided for parties who are detained as witnesses, so that they need not be confined in the County Jail with a promiscuous class of criminals.

He died in Rockland County about a week ago, and before death had a codicil to his will drawn up whereby the previous charitable bequests were cut off and all his property, amounting to $450,000, was left to his relatives.
